All for Labor
The Real New Year

ALL politicians on Monday preached downtrodden labor. John W. Davis warned labor to "shun the will-o'-the-wisp lure of dreamers.

The chief will-o'-the-wisp is the candidate who promises everything before he is elected and forgets all about it after he is elected.

SHUNNING dreams is not always wise. The telephone was once new and cautious investors said it was a dream. They would have got 1,000 for one had they invested in that dream. That's true of nearly everything important that happens in this world. Be sure the dream is foolish before you make up your mind.

THE President shooting at La Follette, says we don't need any foreign ideas of government, "we had better stick to the American brand." That's sound, except that La Follette was born in America, and incidentally the brand of government under which we live was borrowed by Jefferson and others from the French philosophers—not from Red Indians. Our government is foreign; we did not discover or invent freedom.

THE President says "we don't want a corporation government, we don't want a bank government, or a labor government, or a farm government."

On that proposition the President has what gamblers would call "a 50-50 break." We haven't got a labor government or a farm government, that much is sure.

WHEELER, of Montana, as was to be expected, is the fighter of the campaign, and has picked out General Dawes for attack. He referred to him as "the general of the Minute Men in the fight against organized labor."

General Dawes, perhaps, will think of something interesting to say in reply.

MEN and women, young and old, with ambition left, should remember that a new year has begun. The new year of SUCCESS does not begin on January 1, in the middle of Winter. It begins now, with Summer ended, vacations over, schools open, everything under way.

He who begins carrying out his good resolutions and working hard now, instead of waiting until next January 1, will have a start of four months on the others, and that's a good start.

ON MONDAY, in Maine, where the Ku Klux Klan is strong, comes the first 1924 election test. President Coolidge is supposed to have taken politicians' advice to "lay off" the Klan until after this election in order not to injure the Republican candidate for Governor.

NEWS FROM Europe predicts civil war in Ireland. There has been enough war there already, but apparently it is not ended. Thousands of Orangemen gathered to announce that they would fight to the death "any slicing of their territory" by the Irish Free State. The south of Ireland declares that it will have its own.

AN AMERICAN horse defeated the French horse on Labor Day, and the Prince of Wales, who was present, relieved anxious minds. Some of our earnest thinkers wear Panama hats turned up in front; some turn them up on both sides; some on one side only.

The Prince arrived, wearing his Panama turned down all the way around. A careful reporter tells you that within five minutes after his arrival every proud American in that part of the race track set aside for the "Chester class" had his hat turned down all the way around also.

IF YOU ever bet don't bet on foreign horses racing for the first time in this country. All things being even, a horse that has not spent six months getting

JOYOUS WHEN SHE IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

Lucille Layton and Lelia McGuire were two of thirty-one Follies girls present at a gay Boston "Tea Party" aboard the British warship Capetown, in Boston harbor a year ago, when their host fell overboard. Miss McGuire, whose photo appears herewith, the wife of Oscar H. Guinius, a New Orleans realtor, is overjoyed to learn that her husband is suing for divorce. She longs to be free.

FREEDOM IN SIGHT, BRIDE IS JOYOUS

Lelia Goodwin McGuire, beauty of the Ziegfeld Follies, who figured in a gay Boston "Tea Party" just a year ago, is the happiest girl in the world.

Her husband, Oscar H. Gulnius, New Orleans realtor, is suing her for a divorce as its aftermath.

Lelia was one of the merry party that staged a twentieth century edition of the tea party, in Boston harbor while a guest aboard his majesty's ship "Capetown" as she lay at anchor here a year ago.

OVERJOYED AT NEWS.

"A divorce? Wonderful! That's the best news I've heard in ages," she exclaimed when she heard that her husband was seeking his marital freedom.

Turning to her mother, Mrs. Lucian Salomon, who lives with her in a New York apartment, Lelia added:

"At last Oscar has come to his senses. You know, mother, he promised many times he would give me my liberty, but he always backed out. If he has actually filed a suit he will go through with it, I'm sure."

When told that her husband based his suit on her refusal to leave the stage, a laugh came from the lithe understudy for the leading woman in the 1923 Follies.

Then she said:

"Well, I suppose he had to find some excuse. But when I went on the stage a year ago I telegraphed him the news and asked his permission. He granted it. But I don't care now, just so long as I am free."

ELOPED TO WED.

Miss McGuire then told of how she and Gulnius had eloped in 1913, while both were members of a house party in Quincy, Fla. She said their marital happiness was wrecked when her husband refused to leave the real estate business for a more lucrative position.

She charged him with never having been able to furnish her with a home, but insisted that they were still the best of friends.

Miss McGuire's stage career has been brief. She will be seen soon as understudy for the lyric soprano lead in "Anabella," which brings Billie Burke, wife of Ziegfeld, back to the stage.

QUICKLY GOT JOB.

A year ago Miss McGuire walked into the Ziegfeld offices with a friend, "just for a lark," she said. Her simple dress caught the eye of the general manager, Kingston. He stopped and said:

"The little girl in the blue dress, come into my office."

A few minutes' talk and she was sent to Wayburn, dance producer for the Ziegfeld shows, who immediately

MYSTERY MAN FOUND DYING

Police Discover Battered Form In Roslindale Trolley Waiting Room

The battered, unconscious form of an unidentified man, apparently dying, was found today in the street car waiting room, adjoining the Municipal Building in Roslindale.

The man's skull was fractured, and at the City Hospital, where he was taken, he was said to be in an exceedingly dangerous condition.

He was fund by Patrolmen Langlois and Sullivan of the West Roxbury division, who chanced to look into the waiting room as they passed.

There were no papers in the pockets of the wounded man and no other marks of identification.

The police were unable to account for his condition, except in the theory that he had either been assaulted with a blunt instrument or knocked down by an automobile and dragged into the waiting room to die.

Davis' Sister Won't Tell How She'll Vote

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 3.—How she will vote in the November election is nobody else's business and she will not disclose it, Mrs. Mary G. Richardson, sister of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, declared upon returning to her home here from Clarksburg, W. Va.

Mrs. Richardson said she was a Democrat and her husband a Republican, but that they are "in accord" on the subject of national politics.

FIRPO SURE TO BOX HARRY WILLS

Washington, Sept. 3.—The deportation charges brought against Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, by the Rev. William S. Chase of New York and his associates, are expected by persons in close touch with the Department of Labor to have no effect on the big fighter's engagement to meet Harry Wills, negro ring star, Sept. 11.

Mr. Chase, who has been pressing his complaint against the pugilist before the department, has been assured that investigation of the charges, which also name Miss Blanca Picart, Argentine manicurist, was being expedited.

It is pointed out by those familiar with procedure in deportation cases, however, that, even should the charges, which Firpo has denied, be sustained by an immigration Board prior to the scheduled bout, he would have recourse to the courts, and that such an involved procedure could hardly be completed within the next eight days.

Immigration Commissioner Curran at New York notified the Labor Department today that the investigation of charges against Firpo, preferred in the hope of securing his deportation, would be completed within the next two days.

FORMER HARVARD GRID STAR SUED FOR $10,000

Brockton, Sept. 3. — A $10,000 damage suit has been filed against Malcolm J. ("Mal") Logan, former Harvard and All-American gridiron star, now president of the Logan Boy Toe Co., here, by Frank C. Muckie of No. 202 Winthrop street, former night watchman at the Logan plant.

"Mal" Logan.

Muckie says he was discharged after being accused by Logan and his treasurer, Eugene L. Gowdy, of robbing the company safe.

The charge is alleged to have been made in the presence of a number of other persons. Gowdy is defendant in a similar suit.

FLIERS OFF ON HOP TO PICTOU

Start for Nova Scotia Despite Early Threats of Fog and Rain

Hawkes Bay, N. F., Sept. 3 (A.P.)—The American army airplanes on their world flight left here for Pictou, N. S., today at 12:40 p. m., Newfoundland daylight saving time.

It was raining and a southwest wind was blowing thirty miles an hour when the fliers hopped off. The clouds were less than 1000 feet from the surface and the machines kept at a low altitude, flying just over the tips of the waves.

At 12:05 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, the airmen passed over the cruiser Milwaukee, stationed about 100 miles from Hawkes Bay.

Along the course of the flight, the destroyers Charles Ausburn, Cushman and McFarland were stationed to direct the aviators as they passed overhead.

The destroyer Barry acted as station ship at Pictou. The Canadian Destroyer Patriot also was at Pictou.

All the other ships on station were instructed to follow at 25 knots along the route for two hours after the passing of the planes.

Weather reports from the Newfoundland coast, Cape Breton and the Nova Scotian mainland indicated that conditions were most favorable although fog still was hanging over the waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, above which the planes must pass and in some other places scattered along the line of flight. There was only a light breeze and the sea was smooth.

With a slight breeze behind them, the airmen following the western coast of Newfoundland and flying about thirty miles off shore, were rapidly approaching Cape Ray at the southern tip of Newfoundland at one o'clock.

The aviators' route lay from Cape Ray across Cabot Strait to St. Paul Island and then across Northumberland Strait to the entrance to Pictou Harbor.

The airmen were feeling none the worse for their arduous experience yesterday when they had to fight their way through fog, rain squalls and a severe head wind on the latter part of their hop from Ice Tickle, Labrador, across the Labrador peninsula to Hawes Bay.

They were feeling well and were in fine spirits in anticipation of their return later this week to the soil of the United States.

Both Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson declared that their long flight across the north Atlantic from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Frederickshal, Greenland, had been the longest and most difficult of the journey around the world.

Pictou in Gala Dress to Welcome Airmen

Airman Flies from New York to Hub in 70 Minutes

A record airplane flight from New York to Boston is believed to have been made by Major Herbert Dargue, who is in command of the East Boston airport during the arrival and departure of the round-the-world fliers. Major Dargue made the 175 miles from Mitchell Field to East Boston in exactly 70 minutes.

60 FLEE FIRE IN NORTH END FACTORY

Sixty workers, including twenty-five girls, employed by the Charles F. Pegg Company, mattress manufacturers, were driven from the concern's six-story stone building at No. 34 Eastern avenue today by a fire that started on the fourth floor.

Damage of $2,000 resulted from the blaze, begun by friction in a picking machine. Inflammable mattress materials soared into flames, filling the building with smoke. All occupants made their escape safely, however.

Within a short time after its start, the fire had begun to eat its way up into the fifth floor and down to the third. Deputy Chief Daniel F. Sennott ordered hose up extension ladders on the outside and up over the stairs inside, checking the spread.

Thousands of persons traversing Atlantic avenue were attracted to the blaze.

POLITICAL POSTERS IN SOMERVILLE COME DOWN

Somerville police were kept busy today tearing away political signs and posters from posts and trees.

Hill posters toured the city for several candidates placing cards in conspicuous places. Mayor Webster immediately issued an order to the effect that they would have to be removed.

HUB-BOUND MILK TRAIN IN CRASH

Dragging Truck Tears Up Tie, Derailing Cars; Crew Escapes

Nine cars of a Boston & Maine milk train were wrecked today a few yards from the Walnut Hill Station in Woburn.

The cars contained 12,500 gallons of milk, Boston bound. Thousands went without their morning's milk as a result of the accident.

A broken truck frame, dragging from one of the cars and ploughing up the roadbed until a tie was displaced, caused the wreck.

Riding in the caboose at the end of the string of milk cars, the train crew had an escape from death that was all but miraculous.

TIE DISLODGED

There were seventeen milk cars, a locomotive and a caboose in the train, which was made up at Lancaster, N. H., early today.

The first eight milk cars got safely by the station, when the dragging truck frame, which had been digging up the ties, displaced a tie.

The car pitched from the track and went over on its side, the eight others behind it following it off the rails.

Only the caboose kept the roadbed. When the cars rattled and rumbled to a pause, it was perched precariously on the verge of a small incline, and would have gone over in another moment.

50 MILES AN HOUR.

The sleepers were torn up for half a mile by the hanging truck frame, and section crews were immediately patched to the scene as soon as the extent of the damage was realized.

Ward Patterson of Woburn was the engineer of the train and C. L. Thompson of Scompscott the conductor.

They made no statement after the accident. Other trainmen said the

BOY MOTHER CLAIMED NOT HER SON

Fall River, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Clarence Smith of Dighton whose son was kidnaped by a roving band of gypsies five years ago and who had identified a 10-year-old boy in a Chicago juvenile school for three months, has decided that he is not her son and has taken steps to return him to Chicago. When the lad was placed in Mrs. Smith's care three months ago, she felt certain that it was her son. The boy continued to insist that his name was not Russell Smith, but Arthur Tyne and Mrs. Smith says she believes that his deposition is not that of her son.

NEW YORK BUCKET SHOPS INVESTIGATED

New York, Sept. 3.—Bucket shop operations, in which several concerns previously put out of business by State officials are believed to have reopened under different names, are under investigation by the State Attorney-General's office, it was made public today. One shop, which is reported to have been closed five times, is flourishing.

U. S. SEA INSURANCE SNOWS $17,000,000 PROFIT

Washington, Sept. 3.—When the division of marine and seamen's insurance of the Veterans Bureau automatically passed out of existence today, its books showed a net profit of more than $17,000,000, although it had paid claims totalling $29,497,321. The $50,000,000 appropriated by Congress as an operating fund remains intact.

welcome signs hanging from windows and from business houses.

The Canadian destroyer Patriot was standing by here, ready to aid, if necessary, and a plane from the Canadian air fleet was placed at the disposal of Commander Conant Tayler of the Barry to go out and meet the fliers on their arrival.

The destroyer chain, as it was made up when the fog and rain came in this morning, included the Charles Ausburn, at the start, the Coughlan on station midway, the cruiser Richmond traversing the route, and the Barry stationed here.

From every ship came the word of bad threatening weather, and when Picton got the news it prepared to put off another day its welcome to the airmen.

Boston Prepared to Welcome Fliers

With the American round-the-world fliers not expected here until late tomorrow or Friday morning, Boston's chief excitement at the present moment is in the arrival of Lieutenant Antonio Locatelli, Italian flier, whose daring voyage came to an end off Cape Farewell, Greenland, and his rescue by the American Navy.

Lieutenant Locatelli and his three companions were due to arrive at the Boston Navy Yard on board the U. S. S. Lawrence, flagship of the world fliers' escort force, which picked the Italian fliers up after their disastrous experience in the frozen waters of the Northern seas.

The field at the Boston airport in East Boston, where the fliers will land, has been carefully marked, arrangements have been made to take care of the record-breaking crowd expected, and Lieutenant Robert J. Brown, Jr., chairman of the World Flight Committee, who will be in command of the airport during the fliers' stay here, said today that everything was ready.

Airmen to Go to Capital After Leaving Boston

Washington, Sept. 3.—Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik L. Nelson, accompanied by Lieutenant Wade, who will get a new plane at Boston, are expected to arrive here next Tuesday or Wednesday.

They will land at Bolling Field and will rest here for a day, the next hop being to McCook Field, Dayton, O. After a day at Dayton they will fly to Chicago for one day, arriving there September 12 or 13.

The route out of Chicago will be via Cheyenne, Wyo., to the Pacific Coast, the flight to end at Seattle, Wash., where the fliers left continental United States.

Because the flight actually started at Clover Field, Santa Monica, Cal., arrangements may be made for the airmen to fly over Los Angeles before continuing up the coast to Seattle.

Bride Foils Plot to Kidnap Her by Seizing Baby

In order to foil friends who were planning to kidnap her as she started on her honeymoon, Mrs. Arthur H. Azey of Lynn seized the infant of a relative and, holding it in her arms, ran for a waiting automobile.

There she was joined by her newly-wedded husband, and after the baby had been returned to its mother, the couple set off on a wedding trip through Maine and New Hampshire.

The incident occurred as they were leaving the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Drew of No. 142 Eutaw avenue, Lynn. They had been married a short time before by the Rev. Fr. William Drennan ow St. Pius' Church, Mrs. Azey was Miss Mildred E. Drew.

British Planes Are Being Directed by Wireless

Farnborough, Eng., Sept. 3.—Enormous progress has been made in the control of pilotless planes by wireless through experiments carried out at the Royal Aircraft establishment, says the Evening News. Another problem under consideration is the launching of winged bombs from aircraft in flight, and their control over a limited distance on to the desired object.

Great secrecy is being observed by the Air Ministry regarding the experiments, which are regarded as of importance in view of the large measure of success already achieved.

Taxi Passenger Flees His With 30 Cents During Crash

Not only did Sam Marballo of Motley street, Roxbury, get his nice, shiny taxicab smartly midcol today at Water and Congress streets through no fault of his own, but he lost a perfectly good thirty-cent passenger.

Marballo's cab was one of three machines which figured in a crash. An automobile owned and operated by Henry M. Medows of No. 39 Aster street, West Roxbury, struck a taxi owned and operated by Charles H. Dearnan of No. 246 Roxbury street, Roxbury.

This machine was thrown against the cab. A passenger in the taxi slipped out in the confusion and vanished, leaving thirty cents unrecorded on the meter and unpaid.

RAILROAD MEN PLAN FIGHT ON DAYLIGHT LAW

Plans to put the campaign for the repeal of daylight saving on an organized basis were made in the State House at an informal meeting of those who oppose putting the clock ahead.

Representatives of the State Grange, the State Association of Farm Bureaus, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the theatrical profession attended the conference, at which it was decided to open headquarters in Boston in the near future for the dissemination of information for those who would work for the repeal of daylight saving.

Part of the plan involves the printing of a pamphlet showing how the law works to the disadvantage of various classes of people besides the farmers. It was reported at the conference that several manufacturing employers, formerly favorable to the daylight saving law, are now opposed to it.

recommended her engagement. Thus in less than two hours she was transformed from a little girl from Alabama to a member of the Ziegfeld group of beauties.

She said that her husband was the son of the Rev. J. P. Guinois, pastor of the Jackson Avenue Evangelical Lutheran Church in New Orleans.

NO OTHER MAN.

Asked if her happiness over the news of the divorce action was based on a "possible interest in another man," she shook her bobbed brunette head emphatically and said:

"No, indeed. But the uncertainty of being a wife, yet not working at all in the hope of freedom, yet being dependent upon the whims of your husband, first his promise, and then his refusal, is trying on the nerves to say the least.

"All I am thinking of now is my career, and there is no room for any man in my plans for the future."

HERN GIRL SEEN FLEEING WITH TWO MEN

Attleboro, Sept. 2.—Although photographs of Gladys R. Hern, missing 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hern of 40 Holman street, were found in the pocket of Ernest T. Bucklin, whose body was found in the Pawtucket river, the police said that members of the girl's family do not believe that Bucklin was responsible for her disappearance.

A marked newspaper clipping of the girl's absence was also found in the man's clothing, but a sister of Miss Hern told the police that he probably clipped the story through friendly interest, as he was considered a friend of the family and was a frequent visitor at the house.

The theory that Miss Hern's disappearance and Bucklin's drowning are in some way connected was abandoned by the police when they learned that Bucklin had been despondent for some time because of illness. They believe he committed suicide. He formerly resided with his parents in Pawtucket, and his body, after identification by his wife, was turned over to them for burial.

Gladys Hern was last seen on the night of Aug. 25, when several young men who have been questioned by the police say they saw her enter an automobile on Park street and drive away with two strange men.

MANY DIE IN GEORGIA AND AZERBAIJAN REVOLT

London, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—The Georgian representatives in London have received a dispatch from Constantinople saying that Georgia and Azerbaijan were revolting against the Soviet occupation forces and that bloody conflicts have occurred, many being killed or wounded and railway and telegraphic communication being interrupted.

A dispatch from Tiflis, capital of the Georgian Republic, received by way of Moscow, September 1, declared an attempt to overthrow the Soviet regime in Georgia, made last Friday night in several towns and villages of the Republic, had been put down. An official communique issued by the Georgian Council of Commissars claimed the movement had been fully liquidated and the leaders captured.

MACHINE GUNS AT TRIAL IN HERRIN

Sheriff Says Klansmen Opened Fatal Gun Battle in Town

Herrin, Ill., Sept. 3 (AP).—Williamson County is guarded against a possible resumption of hostilities when the sworn enemies—the Ku Klux Klansmen and anti-Klansmen—face each other in the Herrin City Hall.

The occasion was the coroner's inquest into the shooting affray here Saturday in which six men were killed and several wounded.

Sheriff George Galligan said he and his witnesses would be on hand.

"We will come armed with machine guns if necessary," he said, "and after the inquest we will go to the Smith garage and get the automobile we went after Saturday."

Sheriff Galligan and Deputy Ora Thomas in an interview at Marion declared that members of the Klan killed Deputy Sheriff "Bud" Allison Saturday at Herrin before a shot was fired by the sheriff or any of his deputies or any one else.

Mrs. Henry Grant Learnard of Brookline is chairman of the committee in charge, and she will have 200 helpers.

At the same time girls interested in the work will visit the hotels and other places of public gatherings, selling tags.

The committee's mission is to "cheer and comfort the 5,000 disabled ex-service men in government hospitals in and around Boston.

AVIATOR KILLED WHILE FLYING 265 MILES HOUR

Dayton, O., Sept. 3 (Universal)—Lieutenant Alex Pearson, the favorite to win the Pulitzer Trophy prize in the international air races October 4, was instantly killed at Wilbur Field here.

He had been in the air for 15 minutes and was making approximately 265 miles an hour, when the crash came.

Pearson was driving the navy Curtiss racer, which won the Pulitzer event in St. Louis last October. He had gained altitude, swooping downward, and then his controls were seen to throw the ship upward for another climb to altitude, when the right wing of his machine crumpled.

UPTON GIRL SHOOTS SLY "PEEPING TOM"

Upton, Sept. 3.—The Peeping Tom, who has terrified the women of this town for six weeks, will not make his rounds tonight. He is picking buckshot out of his hide. He met his Nemesis at the home of Miss Jennie M. Comstock on Plain street. He peered through a window as she was preparing to retire. She saw him, ran to the kitchen, seized the family shot gun and fired twice. The peeper, in flight, cried out with pain, and today there were blood marks on his path. Miss Comstock called the police who are searching for the Peeper.

KING OF SPAIN HAS FEAR OF REVOLUTION

London, Sept. 3 (Universal Cable).—According to information received by the British Foreign Office, King Alphonso of Spain, although personally popular throughout Spain is losing his nerve and fears revolution. He is investing all his money abroad or in foreign companies working in Spain, particularly the American Telephone Company.

The prospect of early evacuation of Morocco by Spain is causing great perturbation among British officials as it is understood that France wants to occupy the territory evacuated by Spain.

Britain objects to that program as it would mean practically closing the Mediterranean. They point out that the Spanish protectorate was confirmed by international conference and that, therefore, the future protectorate should be determined by a conference of the signatories of the former convention, including the United States.

Diplomatic circles point out that the hopes entertained for a dramatic production of a scheme for disarmament by Premier MacDonald at the Geneva meeting of the League of Nations assembly are likely to be disappointed, his idea being that of security for all and not for any one particular country.

$12,000 BALM FOR YOUNG MRS. BIGNEY

Attleboro Jeweler's Cash Settles His Son's Marital Difficulties

Settlement understood to be in the vicinity of $12,000 will be made on Mrs. Harriet Bigney of Malden, third wife of Harold O. Bigney, whose father, Colonel Sydney Bigney, millionaire Attleboro jewelry manufacturer, was sued by his daughter-in-law for $50,000, alleging alienation of affections.

Meanwhile, the younger Bigney, former Amherst student, is living in Chicago with his fourth wife, without ever having divorced No. 3. He is manager of one of the Bigney stores.

Mrs. Bigney No. 2, on whom Colonel Bigney, once a power in Republican politics, will make the alimony settlement, is at present spending a vacation at Rochester, N. H., with her eight-year-old daughter, Norma.

Following filing of her suit against her millionaire father-in-law by George Stanley Harvey and Frank W. Campbell, her attorneys, the manufacturer denied responsibility or liability, claiming that his son had married his third wife before the divorce from his second became absolute and that the marriage was void.

BUNGALOW SLAYER IS HANGED IN ENGLAND

London, Sept. 3.—(I.N.S.)—With the execution of Patrick Mahon, in Wadsworth jail today the curtain has been rung down on one of the most cruel murders in the history of England. Mahon was hanged for the murder of Miss Emily Beilby Kayes.

From the fact that the murder was committed in a bungalow on a lonely stretch of foreshore known as the "Crumbles" near Eastbourne, the crime was known as the bungalow murder. The victim was about 39 years of age and, according to evidence at the trial was infatuated with Mahon. Miss Kayes had an inheritance of $40,000 and they rented a bungalow planning to spend the rest of their lives there.

This money was soon spent and Mahon tired of his companion. His coldness led to numerous quarrels and it was during one of these that the woman was killed.

BRIDEGROOM SHANGHAIED AFTER WEDDING, BUT ALL'S WELL NOW

SON MADE CAPTIVE BY PARENTS

Springfield Young Couple Are United After Many Postponements

Springfield, Sept. 3.—It took a long time and once Theodore left her waiting at the church—but at last Grace Irene Decker, eighteen, of No. 99 North Main street, and Theodore Midor Bleau, nineteen, of No. 448 North Main street, are married.

Then Theodore's father and mother hopped on him, made him captive and refused to let him rejoin his bride, until the bride's mother had secured the assistance of the police.

Today Grace and Theodore are on their honeymoon, rejoicing in the belief that most of their allotment of marital difficulties were passed to them even before the marriage.

RESUMES COURTSHIP.

Last Spring their romance had progressed to the point where a wedding day was set. Everything seemed to be proceeding smoothly and at the appointed time Grace, with 100 relatives and friends, arrived at St. James Methodist Church for the ceremony. Several hours later the girl went home in tears. Bleau had failed to show.

He explained later, to Grace's dismay, that his mother and father had objected to his marrying outside the Catholic faith and he had acceded to their wishes—that time.

The couple resumed amicable relations and another date was set for the wedding. Another postponement resulted when Theodore again ran into the objections of his parents.

WEDDED AT LAST.

Then there was a third date and postponement, and a fourth. Grace began to think the whole affair was getting plumb ridiculous.

But Theodore, suddenly brave in the crisis, threw all precaution to the winds. The couple were married by the Rev. Dr. Fred Winslow Adams, pastor of Trinity Methodist church.

The marriage did not end the difficulties, however. When Theodore went home to break the news to his foreign, they made him an unwilling captive whose whereabouts were a mystery to his bride until she began to investigate his absence.

Then the bride's mother telephoned the police. Patrolman Peter Marra went to the house, and after a strenuous argument, secured the release of the roving bridegroom.

Now Grace and Theodore are on their honeymoon.

POLE SENTENCED FOR REVEALING WAR PLANS

Warsaw, Sept. 3.—The Supreme Court has imposed a prison sentence on M. Pisulski, formerly a functionary in the War Office, upon his confession that he delivered a document concerning Polish mobilization plans to the Soviet legation here.

Pisulski testified that he asked the legation for a visa to visit his parents in Russia, who were in direct need, but that the legation promised the visa only if he brought the mobilization document. After fulfilling his part of the bargain, he declared, the Russians refused him the promised visa.

HELEN'S RIDE TO TEXAS COMES CROPPER

Miss Helen Hayes, "beautiful horse thief," who lays claim to matriculation at Boston University, sometimes, and in other moments to Sullins College, Tenn., and Lasell Seminary in Auburndale, is going to ride "thet tha'r hoss" to Texas if she breaks a leg.

She came near doing just that today in Danbridge, Tenn., when the horse ran away with her during a thunderstorm and threw her along the roadside, where she was picked up unconscious with many bruises.

Miss Hayes, who says on occasions that she is the daughter of a wealthy Greenwich, Ct., man, and then again on other occasions, daughter of an army officer in Texas, set out last April to ride from New York to Texas on horseback.

At the very tart of her expedition she came to grief, however. She had been instructing the daughters of Robert Menzes, retired business man of the Bronx, N. Y., in the art of horsemanship. When the lessons were done, the tutor suffered a lapse of memory and rode off on the animal.

A State trooper caught up with her and reminded her of the error. Laughingly she admitted that she had taken the animal to ride to Texas, but said: "Pop will square the bill."

"Pop" failed to come through on schedule, so Helen went into court as a confessed horse thief. But the case was thrown out when Menzes refused to prosecute.

WILL KEEP GOING.

Since that time—on some other horse—the pretty and vivacious Helen has jogged and cantered her way South into Tennessee, where the thunderstorm mussed things up for her once more.

At the General Hospital in Danbridge she was found to be bruised and shaken up a bit but otherwise unhurt. She intends to set out again for El Paso immediately if the horse hasn't run too far.

Chicopee, Sept. 3.—Millions of feet of lumber were destroyed early today in a $100,000 fire that destroyed the plant and storeyards of the Doane & Williams Lumber Company at Willimansett.

MOB THREATENS ATTACKER OF LITTLE BOY

Brockton, Sept. 3.—Edward Sullivan, 59-year-old inmate of the City Farm, faces a multiplicity of charges in District Court here following his narrow escape from mob of enraged citizens after his attack on 6-year-old Francis Dorgan of Jacob street, East Side.

More than half a hundred men armed with revolvers, clubs and other weapons searched the woods about the City Farm for hours after the Dorgan boy appeared at his home, his clothing in tatters and his face cut and bleeding, and told of the aged pauper attacking him.

SAVED FROM MOB.

Patrolman Spears of the Brockton force saved Sullivan from the mob searching for him. The officer found the man hiding in the underbrush and rushed him to the city lock-up before the mob learned of the capture.

The Dorgan boy left his home to play in the woods near Pine street early in the afternoon.

He returned home three hours later, crying, with his face and head bruised and most of his clothes torn from his body. He told his parents Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dorgan, that a man took him into the woods.

FATHER CATCHES PAUPER.

Mr. Dorgan went to the vicinity described by the boy and caught Sullivan, and decided to turn him over to the police. He was leading Sullivan along when the latter broke away.

A few minutes later some 30 or 40 of the men of the East Side were combing the woods. Two or three of them had revolvers and one man carried a long rope. For nearly two hours they kept up the hunt, using lanterns part of the time.

MASS MEETING TO VOICE PROTEST

A mass meeting to protest against the wholesale dumping of garbage and other objectionable material in an excavation at Phillips and Conant streets, Roxbury, is being planned by residents of that section.

According to indignant residents, more than 200 cases of condemned blueberries, together with other objectionable material, have been used in filling the excavation.

The fifty-foot aperture was left when the Boston Consolidated Gas Company building was torn down two months ago.

The gas company contracted with Boston concern to fill in the excavation. According to H. J. Dasher of No. 2 Morlack place, Roxbury, who, with Councillor James A. Watson, called on Mayor Curley to protests, the concern has been dumping all sorts of material for the past eight weeks.

Complaints were made to the board of health, which ordered the practices stopped. It was said that one woman had been sent to a hospital and a number of children became ill as a result of the dumping of decayed fruit and vegetables.

At the forthcoming mass meeting it is planned to draw up a petition calling upon city officials to take some action to abolish what the residents call a serious condition.

'DEAR ESTELLE' WANTS JACK TO WAIT

Wed in Two Years? "Time Enough to Die!" Declares Dempsey

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 3. (I.N.S.)—Jack Dempsey denied reports that he and Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress, were to be married within a year. Dempsey and both had their careers before them.

"I am no different from any other American and would not want the marriage celebrated with any red letter advertisement if we were contemplating matrimony," Dempsey said. "Miss Taylor feels the same way about it."

Dempsey said they were sentimentally "good and close friends" and referred to Miss Taylor as "Estelle dear."

Miss Taylor corroborated Dempsey's statement that her screen career could not be sacrificed as yet.

"Love is a thing which one can hold dear over a long period of time," she said.

Asked as to the date of her contemplated marriage, she intimated that it might take place in two years.

"Time enough to die," Jack interrupted.

"You may be dead, but not I," Estelle replied.

The letter expresses contempt for politicians, from the proposed formation of an Italic league or any other organization of a political nature and continues:

MISS BOSTON AT PAGEANT OPENING

Makes Decided Hit at Brilliant Ball for Beauties at Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 3.—With Mildred M. Prendergast (Miss Boston) in attendance, the formal opening of the famous Atlantic City pageant took place today.

The winner of the Boston American's MOST CHARMING GIRL tournament made her first public appearance at a brilliant ball, splendidly attired in a tube gown of black satin silvercloth valued at $250, which was the gift of the Mackenn-Ruby Company of Boston.

MAKES DECIDED HIT

"Miss Boston" made a decided hit. Those who saw Miss Margaret Black, last season's "Miss Boston," who is now a member of the Ziegfeld Follies, said that this season's winner was fully up to last year's in personality and pulchritude.

Mrs. Prendergast's naive manner and sweet smile made friends for her wherever she appeared. Many predicted she would be one of the favorites among the inter-city beauties.

After being in Atlantic City a few hours, "Miss Boston," while resting in her luxurious suite at Hotel Traymore, said: "It is just wonderful. I did not realize there was a place in the world as marvelous as Atlantic City. I am already having the time of my life. I don't know how I can spare time to sleep."

Formal opening of the pageant occurred today, when King Neptune arose from the sea and paraded the boardwalk, escorted by a court of beauty and the inter-city beauties. The inter-city beauties had previously been received by Mayor Edward L. Bader, who presented each a key of the city. Then came the naval and marine revue.

EXTRAVAGANZA TONIGHT.

Tonight "Miss Boston" will attend an extravaganza in the Garden Pier. In this extravaganza King Neptune is shown departing from his ocean realm with the Golden Mermaid statue (made of pure gold) for presentation to the beauty queen of the Atlantic City pageant. This event is attended by all the inter-city beauties, the court of beauty and a special ballet also will participate.

The spectacular rolling chair parade takes place tomorrow afternoon, followed in the evening at the Garden Theatre by the national beauty tournament.

Miss Mary K. Campbell of Columbus, O., crowned beauty queen of the pageant last year and the year before, hopes to win the same honor tomorrow night, in which event the Golden Mermaid statue, valued at $5,000, will be her permanent property. It is necessary to win three years in succession to retain it.

Harvard Football Hero Weds Milton Girl Today

By BETTY ALDEN

WHEN George Owen, Jr., clutched the old pigskin and tore great holes through the Yale line, he was a mighty hero indeed.

Every eye was centred upon the famous fullback of the Crimson eleven.

All during his college career, George Owen, Jr., was showered with attention. His praises were sung right lustily at the end of many a contest waged between the Crimson and her rivals, whether on the gridiron, the diamond or ice.

But today George Owen, Jr., played "second fiddle."

For today was George Owen, Jr.'s, wedding day, and who ever notices a bridegroom at a wedding?

The young lady upon whom all eyes centred, despite the presence of the gridiron star, was Miss Lorna Trafford of Milton.

Of course, after the ceremony at tink St. Michaels Church in Milton, the groom was noticed nearly as much as the bride at the reception following immediately after at the Woodland road home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford.

But during the ceremony Lorna Trafford was the target of all eyes, and George Owen, Jr., was just a bridegroom.

YOUNG Mrs. Herbert Swift Carter, Jr. (Rachel Trafford), who is herself a bride of just a few months, attended her sister as matron of honor. A younger sister, Miss Annette Trafford, was maid of honor, while little Ada Trafford was flower girl.

Eight bridesmaids preceded the bride to the altar, the group including the Misses Theresa De-Normandie, Ethel Cummings, Alice Thomas and Ellen Whitney, all of Boston; Miss Blanche Borden of Fall River, a cousin of the bride; Miss Edith Darrach of Greenwich, Ct.; Miss Florence Owen, a sister of the groom, and Miss Sabina Dwinnell.

Lewis Jocelyn Young of Newton was best man.

The ushers' squad included Robert Bradford, Philip Coburn, Philip Kunhardt, Clark Macomber, John Paine and Bernard W. Trafford, Jr., all of them local men—as well as Herbert S. Carter, Jr., Kenneth Lucas and Curry Watson of Gotham and Julius Appleton of Springfield.

SPEAKING of the Owen-Trafford nuptials—It is interesting to note that while George Owen, Jr., attended Harvard he won nine letters, a record which was almost equalled thirty years ago by the bride's father, when he succeeded in acquiring eight letters. George Owen's record, however, still remains unbroken.

IN GARDEN PARTY

Little Nancy Minot of Pride's Crossing, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Means and great-granddaughter of Senator Lodge, made a very quaint-looking little miss at the old-fashioned garden party recently held at Pride's.

Such an affair was the old-fashioned garden party recently staged on the Gardner estate at Pride's Crossing to benefit the Children's Hospital. Many of the Shore's young folk turned actors for the occasion. Some of them sang, some of them danced, others posed for "living pictures" and still others took part in a scene from the "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Billy and Nancy Minot, who rendered their little song on this occasion, are the children of Mrs. Gordon Means (Mrs. Constance Gardner Minot) of Pride's Crossing and the great-grandchildren of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant.

TUCKERS BALK ON FORGIVING THEIR SON

When young Burton Tucker told reporters on the Pacific Coast that his parents had relented and were about to extend their blessing to him and his middle-aged wife, he was premature, to say the least.

"Nothing of the sort has happened or is likely to happen," said his mother, Mrs. Joseph Tucker of Salem.

"I don't know why Burton should make such a ridiculous assertion, if he did. There is no change in the situation.

"We have not heard from Burton, although the Los Angeles dispatches quote him as saying he had invited us to visit him and his wife. We are not going to California. No reconciliation is probable."

She added that Mrs. Tucker had bought her boy husband and "was welcome to keep him to herself."

Tucker is not twenty yet and his bride of eighteen months ago is nearly fifty. They have a daughter five months old. When the birth was announced relatives of the boy bridegroom declared they believed that Mrs. Tucker bought it.

In the Los Angeles dispatch, telling of the "reconciliation" which now has been denied, young Tucker said he and his wife were more in love than when they were married.

M'DONALD IS WORKING FOR DISARMAMENT

Premier Trying to Have the League Pave Way for Conference

Geneva, Sept. 3 (I. N. S.)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of England, arrived today and plunged immediately into his task of having the league of nations pave the way for an international disarmament conference.

Representatives of the Swiss government and the league met the British statesman. Streets were crowded with men and women who cheered MacDonald as he was driven on to his hotel and later as he was driven to the league assembly meeting.

MacDonald received no applause when he entered the assembly meeting whereas Premier Herriot, of France, received an ovation.

Premiers MacDonald and Herriot conferred after the morning session. They are working in harmony to have the league pledge all nations to a security agreement for peace and disarmament.

Gilbert Murray of England, addressing the Assembly, declared that World Peace would "not" be assured until the League had made arrangements for the protection of minorities. He suggested that minority populations be permitted to present grievances to the council, special attention being given to minority populations under Turkish domination.

Murray's proposal was supported by M. Politis of Greece.

A manifestation of American-Japanese friendship, arranged in the hope of removing any Japanese doubts concerning the sincere amity entertained by Americans for the Japanese, despite the recent American immigration legislation, took place today in the form of a luncheon offered by officials of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association of the United States, now in Geneva, to officials of the League of Nations Union of Japan. The entire Japanese delegation, headed by Viscount Ishii, was present.

REBEL FORCES MAKE GAINS IN HONDURAS

San Salvador, Sept. 3.—Dispatches from Honduras say rebel troops commanded by General Gregorio Ferrera have occupied Santa Barbara without resistance from the government forces and that rebels have penetrated Cortez department and are advancing on San Pedro, in Sula.

Advices from Ocotupeque and San Nicholas confirm the occupation of Santa Barbara and the continued rebel advance in northern Honduras.

DARIO RESTA IS HURLED TO DEATH

Killed as His Racing Auto Plunges Through an Iron Fence

Brooklands, Eng., Sept. 3.—(A.P.)—Dario Resta, famous automobile racing driver, was killed today attempting to establish a new world's record. He was killed instantaneously when his racer plunged through the iron fence bordering the track here.

His mechanician, Perkins, escaped with minor injuries.

The car, Resta's Grand Prix Sunbeam, plunged from the track on the straightaway paralleling the railway track during the second lap. The wreckage caught fire and the car was destroyed.

Resta only recently arrived from the United States.

New York, Sept. 3.—Dario Resta came to America in 1913 and in 1916 won the Vanderbilt cup and the Grand Prix at the San Francisco Exposition. In 1916 he won the Indianapolis 500-mile speedway race. He finished second to Ralph De Palma in the Indianapolis race in 1915.

Resta, who was born of Italian parents in England won his reputation as a racer in Europe before he came to this country. He had been racing almost twenty years.

MOTHER AND BABY KILLED BY TROLLEY

Worcester, Sept. 3.—Hurrying to keep a tryst with her husband, Mrs. Gladys Alger, twenty-five, of Park Hill, Millbury, and her two-year-old son, Fred, Jr., were crushed to death by a street car on Grafton street hill, this city, while three-year-old Gladys escaped death by a hair's breadth and saw her mother and baby brother go beneath the wheels.

Mrs. Alger had been visiting relatives on Barclay street and was hurrying downtown to meet her husband before he could start for Millbury on his way home from work.

LIBERAL WINNER IN QUEBEC BYE-ELECTION

St Mouski, Que., Sept. 3.—General Sir Eugene Fiset, Liberal candidate, was elected member of Parliament in the Federal bye-election with a majority of 1,917 votes over Elizaer Sussexville, Conservative, according to returns received from all except one poll in his constituency.

DOG'S VICTIM

JOHN GRADY

WATCH BOY FOR SYMPTOMS OF HYDROPHOBIA

Bitten in the back by a savage dog, four-year-old John Grady of No. 1422 Tremont street, Roxbury, is in a serious condition at the City hospital.

As the dog was not captured for observation, the boy is being watched for signs of hydrophobia.

Young Grady was playing in the street in front of his home when the dog approached, knocked him to the ground, mauled and clawed him and sanded by biting. The boy was unable to arise from the ground.

THREE BOYS DROWNED IN BAY STATE WATERS

Three youths lost their lives in Massachusetts waters as an added toll to the death list that has followed New England's unprecedented hot wave of the past four days.

At Magazine Beach, Cambridge, Earl Washington, twelve years old of No. 14 Northfield street, Roxbury, was drowned just as Life-Guard Thomas L. Sullivan endeavored to lift him from the water.

George Papia, six-year-old son of Joseph Papia, of No. 10 Calvery street, Waltham, was drowned in the Charles River near his home.

At Pittsfield, Joseph Murphy, aged eighteen, of Jersey City, a student at the St. Regis High School in New York, was drowned in Pontoosuc Lake when a sudden squall capsized his canoe.

SINGLE SESSION FOR SUPERIOR COURT

Absence of Many Witnesses Causes a Shift in the Month's Program

Although preparations had been made for two sessions of the Superior Court during the month of September, District-Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, today decided that as many police officers and other witnesses were away on vacations, that only one session would be sufficient to dispose of jail and appealed cases.

Judge Raymond of the Superior Court will preside over the session.

Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall has notified John P. Manning, clerk of the Superior Court, for the transaction of criminal business, that at the hearing on the first Monday of October, four sessions of the court will be held. In three of these there will be trials by jury. The judge assigned to the other sessions will have charge of all preliminary matters and the disposition of cases in which defendants have been found guilty.

Although there has been a decided falling off in the list of appealed cases, there still remains enough work to require the presence of four judges.

Within the past few months, there has been quite a change, also in the personnel of the district attorney's office. Of the office assistants, Maurice Caro, Frank W. Deland, Peter McCarty, Daniel W. Casey and John Boell, are still in active service. Recent additions to the force are George Alpert, Robert C. McGuire, William Gaston Smith, Jr., and Joseph J. Leonard.

Political Notes

Former Representative John J. Hefferman of Brighton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for register of probate in Suffolk County, at rallies in his home district denounced the State Department of Public Utilities for allowing the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company to increase its rates on pole and private lines at rallies in his home district.

John J. Cummings of Boston, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, at rallies in Dorchester and South Boston said, "After seventeen years in the practice of law, I have reached the conviction that our Massachusetts judges ought not to be appointed, as at present, for life."

Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger invaded East Milton, the home town of Louis A. Coolidge, one of his opponents in the race for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. In a rally there, Dallinger declared Coolidge "is not a popular candidate, because he is treasurer of a monopoly." Mr. Dallinger also declared that Speaker Gillett was out of the race, remarking "the fight is between Dallinger and Coolidge."

Congressman Peter F. Tague at rallies in the South End, Charlestown, and East Boston, speaking of his position on the Committee on Ways and Means, said, "The Democratic members are the Democratic committee on committees which selects the committees on which all Democratic Representatives shall serve. As a member I was able to have every Northern Democrat assigned to an important committee."

South Hadley, Sept. 3.—The candidacy of Senator William S. Youngman of Boston, for State treasurer, was boomed to hundreds of cards signed by F. M. Smith, chairman of the Republican town committee, and mailed to the voters.

The Rev. Dr. Herbert S. Johnson, in a speech today at 1 o'clock, in Pemberton square, opened his speaking campaign against Congressman George Holden Tinkham for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 11th district.

Inauguration of a system of preventing disease among the people of the State was advocated by State Treasurer James Jackson, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, in speeches at Lowell and Lawrence.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice-presidential nominee, announced he would make his next campaign address September 15, in Milwaukee.

City Committee George F. Hibbeln will speak tonight in Brighton, Hyde Park and Dorchester in the interest of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Register of Probate of Suffolk County. Speaking at the 101st Infantry Armory he told of his record as a city councilor

ARGENTINE GIRL TO TRY CHANNEL SWIM

Calais, France, Sept. 3.—Lillian Harrison, Argentine mermaid, plans to start her cross-channel swim from Cap Gris Nez at 11 o'clock tonight.

WHEELER LINKS COOLIDGE WITH OIL INTERESTS

Declares President Is Indicted Before Bar of Public Opinion

Lowell, Sept. 3.—Charging that "President Coolidge has had me indicted in a Federal Court," Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Independent-Progressive candidate for Vice-President, drew an indictment of his own against the President in a speech at City Hall today. He speaks in Manchester, N. H., tonight.

"he charges I bring against him," said Senator Wheeler, "are all matters of public record.

"His friends say he is a man who says nothing. Will they offer as his defense the assertion that he sees nothing, hears nothing—and smells nothing?" The Senator's speech follows:

"I am sorry I cannot remain longer than this week on my present visit to New England. Not only is it good to be back among the folks I used to know, but the amazing interest that is being taken in this State, in New Hampshire, and in Maine, in the progressive campaign is immensely encouraging as to the result next November. I'd like to remain and watch the progressive spirit grow. But I cannot.

TO ANSWER INDICTMENT.

"I have been called back to Montana. You know why. You know that in the midst of the investigation which finally resulted in driving Mr. Coolidge's attorney-general out of office, that same attorney-general succeeded in having an indictment brought against me. No one supposed then that any serious effort would be made to bring this case to trial. Certainly, after the senate had voted almost unanimously to accept the report of a Senate Committee which investigated the circumstances of the indictment and reported that the charge was without foundation, no one ever expected that indictment to stand. The chairman of the investigating committee was a Republican senator.

"Mr. Coolidge has had me indicted in the Federal Court. I am here to return the compliment. I am here to indict him in the court of public opinion. Not for what he has done to me. That will take care of itself in due time. But for what he has done to you. I shall bring on him an indictment that will stick. It shall not be said that I 'framed' him, nor shall it be said that if any one acted we allowed him to get away.

"The charges I bring against him are all matters of public record.

"SMELLS NOTHING."

"The records will show that he sat in Mr. Harding's cabinet when the oil leases on the Navy's oil land in this State were signed and it was decided that this should be a national defense reserve to be taken from the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Denby, and given to the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Fall—Mr. Fall, who in the shortest possible time then turned the oil lands over to his political friends, the Doheny interests, for a mere pittance, who had loaned him $100,000. The deal itself was incredible, but it would be more incredible still if it were going on without Mr. Coolidge's knowledge. It would not square with the attendant circumstances in this State nor with his characteristics all us New Englanders.

"The records will show that Mr. Coolidge was part of the official life of Washington during the time that an effort was made to smother the scandal in the Department of Justice. The record does not show that he even held his nose. I do not claim to have a keener sense of smell than any other native of this State, but I detected the rotten odor of the conspiracy in the Department of Justice before I had been in Washington a week.

"His friends say that he is a man who says nothing. Will they offer as his defense the assertion that he also sees nothing, hears nothing—and smells nothing?"

WINANT DEFEATS MAYOR KNOX IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 3.—Capt. John G. Winant, Concord financier, was conceded the Republican nomination for governor today by his chief opponent, Major Frank Knox, publisher of the Manchester Union and Leader, when the returns from 247 of the 294 electoral districts gave Winant a plurality of 2044. The totals were: Winant 18,039; Knox 16,612.

CANDIDATE FOR HOUSE CALLED 'WAR BABY'

Wants Seat to Benefit Leather Interests, Says Edna Spencer Lawrence

Harry I. Thayer, candidate for Congress in the eighth district, was styled "War Baby" Thayer by Miss Edna Lawrence Spencer, candidate for the Republican nomination in that district, at an open air rally held in Harvard square.

"Previous to 1917," declared Miss Spencer, "Mr. Thayer was a tanner in a small way, and, like hundreds of others, is commonly credited with having made his money during the war.

"Mr. Thayer speaks most feelingly of his humanitarianism, but did he cut down his prices to rock-bottom to help our Government and our boys in the trenches? No, he did not do that and because he did not, he is a rich man today and he wants to go to Congress so he can further benefit the leather interests which are his own.

"To be well-remembered what we called 'those well-heeled firms' during the war, which suddenly swung over night into the million-dollar class, if those in this campaign Mr. Thayer's initials, instead of 'H. I.' might well be changed to 'W. B.' —War Baby 'Thayer."

La Follette First to Hit Klan, Says Wheeler

Portland, Me., Sept. 3.—Senator Wheeler, left Portland early today, pushing forward his speaking tour in New England, with stops scheduled at Lowell and Manchester, N. H. Rain disturbed and delayed his Tuesday efforts, but did not hamper them entirely, and his night address at Portland before such an audience as defied weather and delay, was received by the Democratic and Republican parties, and introduced the topic of the Ku Klux Klan.

Senator La Follette, his Presidential candidate, was the first national candidate, declared Senator Wheeler, to declare plainly that the Ku Klux Klan was an organization adverse to American principles. John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, had hesitated long before doing so, he continued. General Dawes, Republican vice-presidential candidate, had declined to speak such words on the subject that there was no doubt as to where he stands, and the Republican platform was silent on the subject. Democrats to abandon silence on the subject," Senator Wheeler said. He himself, he added, stood on the platform of 1920 which proposed to enforce its will illegally.

He urged the men and women of the New England to help tell the people of the Middle West, "where I want to sneak," that they were against the war on existing national political organizations. Again and again he cited the findings of the Senate committee, which investigated former Attorney-General Daugherty as demonstrating corruption in national government, and he asserted this corruption existed through financial interests established in Wall Street, controlled both political parties and its Republican and Democratic party organizations to the operation of professional politicians.

NEW PUZZLES SIMMERING ON FIRE

Portable Contest Ends With Barge Chock of Answers Almost Completed

Take it from me—that includes the weary Little Northumberland—the new puzzle contest now being hatched in our own home-made unpatented incubator is going to be a "super-Hot" or whatever you want to call it.

You wrestled and tugged with the last puzzle contest—and so did we. There must have been a dozen thousand or more answers showered down on poor "Northy" and he's still checking up on the answers. But he'll come out of the cloud pretty soon and then the lucky guys will know the best and the others vice versa.

But the new contest will get you radio fans even harder. It's so good we don't even know ourselves how it was conceived in what we humorously refer to as our brain.

Portable stock closed last night—early today would be better—with a rush. It seemed that everyone was listening. Many of the boys didn't even wait for the mailman to collect from the boxes. They brought in their answers and slipped them through the beautiful slot we've had cut in our door.

If you can't stagger along for a few more hours, we'll finally release to a palpitating, eager world the details of the new puzzle contest. If you can't manage to stagger along—well, you'll have to anyway. It can't be helped. We must have time.

Betty Francisco, you certainly are a little minx. Gas On Stomach Makes People Nervous

Mrs. Cook Nervous 12 Years Due to Gas, Adlerika Helps Her

"For 12 years I suffered from gas on the stomach and was nervous and short of breath. Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) has done me more good than anything." (Signed) Lew Cook, Sandy.

Intestinal Antiseptic

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a complete system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to allay gas or flatus caused by germs and relax bulld in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start there.

It cleans out BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes foul matter which poisoned the system for months. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it!

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

Boston Girl's Impassioned Love Story and Her Struggle to Live It Down and Come Back

"AND do you think it is right to force this on me? Oh, you can't think that! I don't see how you can refuse me the chance to do what good I can. All these twenty months—how mean to blot them out? You don't realize what you are doing!"

She looked up then and swallowed and held her lips in a hard, straight line: "You are just insisting that I be chained all my life to this one error! You're doing that!"

Childish Pride

And Chickie wouldn't call it a sin and she wouldn't master the sore, childish pride that, being humbled only heaved the more.

Miss Simonds closed her eyes wearily: "If you won't understand, Miss Bryce, that it is your interest against the interest of many, what can I say to you? You speak as though I were responsible for your downfall."

"Ho! Downfall! You call it that! It was no more downfall than marriage is and I looked at it as that sacred. It was. All I see is because it didn't turn out right and I was foolol. You call me a person of doubtful character. But I'm not. I never was. It doesn't make me of unsound morality because I loved. You don't know. You can't judge."

"My child had a perfect right to be. It had every right that God can know. Only man can find it wrong. Why they have to make laws to create a wrong where none exists. And that's so! And what difference is there between my child and the child of marriage? What difference between married emotions and unmarried emotions? Why can't you answer? I can tell you! Ho—a big lie!"

Suddenly she laughed—a half sobbing, hysterical laugh. Miss Simonds blushed. Her color rose slowly across the envelope.

"This is where our views differ, Miss Bryce. You seem to think you had a perfect right to follow out your own selfish desires and give no thought to consequences. You did a thing that if done by all would shake the foundation of the entire moral world.

Protection of Home

"These conventions are for the protection of the home and the young race. If we disregard marriage what is to become of the children of the world? Are they to be fatherless because you or others will not wait for the law's sanction? Is it any justification that your love is sacred when it is at the same time utterly selfish?"

The shot went to the heart. Chickie was stunned and nodded as though she didn't quite know what she was doing. "Yes—that's true—the child shouldn't suffer. That's the wrong—"

But she was desperate and rallied even from this. She kept repeating: "That's the wrong." And there were flashing through her mind and every tortured nerve, images she had seen of these children; and things she had thought in all these aching years.

She poured them out now like a living fire. There was no stopping her. Miss Simonds put up her hand. Chickie flung her head back and kept on:

"But that's the world's sin, Miss Simonds, and not mine. The world should not treat a baby so. It should be glad to have them. It should protect them and recognize them—oh, as a great gift. Then there would be no shame, but a beauty in the coming of a child—no matter who the mother was, or the father.

"And some day this will be, and no law will dare to take a little child and brand it and make all its life a misery. Do you think that's right? You tell me, Miss Simonds—do you think that's right?"

Acting Foolish

Miss Simonds pushed her chair. "Will you sit down, Miss Bryce? You are acting very foolish."

"I say—do you think that's right? Was it right that I had to go away and hide and pray that my child would die and pray that I would die? As though to have a child were the ultimate infamy!

"But it should be a glory. And every girl who is to have a child should be honored—"

"I think you've said quite enough, Miss Bryce. You are not aiding yourself—"

"Ho—aiding myself—but I say there should be a temple builded—the most beautiful place in all the world; and girls who are to have children should go there, and the law should do everything to make the child a worth-while child. Then men would acknowledgeatheir children and be proud of them, and love would be recognized, as marriage is!"

"Ho—I'd like to know what you think. Why don't you answer?"

Suddenly she heard this uncontrolled voice of hers chanting. Suddenly she knew she was defeated, the half-won triumph snatched away. She saw Miss Simonds gather papers on the desk and she noticed that Miss Simonds' nails were pink and shiny, like little petals.

She heard a voice of cold dignity: "Are you finished at last, Miss Bryce? Or can you think of something else to say?"

Eyes Down

Chickie kept her eyes down. And this second death of hope was a frightful, doorning thing.

"You are neither chastened nor humbled. I am sorry to see this attitude. I have a sympathy for you, Miss Bryce. But you wish the whole world declared wrong in order that you may be found right. You want to make your own rules and play your own game, yet you demand a share in the world's favors."

Chickie gave a sharp, forlorn denial. "Ho, I want a chance to keep the rules, to show that I will keep them." And she added with a broken quiet: "You won't give it to me, Miss Simonds? Surely—"

Chickie closed her eyes. She stood for a few moments resting her weight on her hands.

The hardest thing Chickie ever did was to walk down that endless corridor with her head up and lips quiet. She had forcibly to keep herself from running.

The last few paces she did run, with a flying bolt reached her room, closing the door as though all the wild things on earth pursued her.

She felt herself in the mist of a lightning and a clash—and she kept saying: "No! It can't be! It is not!"

But she stooped down suddenly and pulled her trunk from under the bed. She began flinging clothes helter skelter into it.

In the ward she had left less than an hour ago there was a little, homeless girl. And she had a broken back. Chickie had been drawing a picture to amuse her—a funny picture of a man with a great long nose. The little girl went into gales of laughter and said: "Aw nurse—pretty nurse—don't go!" So Chickie was to run right back and finish the mouth and put another tuft on the nose. Sure now! No fooling?

Chickie remembered this now. Her heart swelled in a still passion of revolt. A mere human being—a thing of flesh like herself, had sent for her and had calmly ordered that all these glad, new threads of life were to be snapped. It was stark and incredible as though one rejoicing mightily in each breath he draws is told: "Stop in here—you are to be murdered!"

Hands in Frenzy

No one submits to a thing like that! Chickie wouldn't. They'd see! The frenzy of her hands became terrible. The drawers were empty. She put down the cover of her trunk.

And she began to dress—quickly—but pausing now and then and pressing her fists against her cheeks. She wore a dark suit, a new white gardenia pinned to the lapel. Chickie loved a flower, the song of a bird, a ray of light shimmering across the wall. Things like this were music.

She wore a dark hat with a brim. Under this her eyes were cavernous, her face had a monolithe pallor. Looking at her, no one would dream they were sending her away because she was a girl of doubtful character.

She stood at the foot of the bed, touching the white flower. She couldn't wear a flower! Not here! Not in public; no chaste in her. She started to unpin it; hastily snapped it back. Was it true that she could be utterly punished, that other girls might learn?

Miss Simonds said so. It had brought her that bracelet! To mult. Frantic, uncontrolled sensations flowed back into dessins to her cheeks. How unbelbled she had been! How pathetically defiant.

She wondered now if she might have fared better; might even have remained if she had steadied herself; if she had spoken with a plendore dignity. Oh, no—that wouldn't have mattered! Why, she had been quite at first. Oh! who could be quite in such an hour—quiet when lives are broken and a game fight lost?

Stared About Room

Lost—she saw this word in a picture—that old picture of many years ago—and men drowning far above it all, a girl clinging to the mast. One saved and hundreds lost!

If she examined at the foot of the bed, staring about the room. Myrtle's linen underwear was drying on the chairs. Powder and hairpins covered the dresser; all the drawers were opened. How all this shabbiness had irritated her in the beginning. Now how she had railed at Myrtle when she piled careless little mounds of cigarette ashes in the window box.

How she clung to these details now—how she even loved them. She was frozen in a resentful hesitation which is fatal. Oh, some thing would happen! So, one looks at the face of a mother who is dead and seals for the beloved lips to speak again.

Twenty months in this room—quitting it now—never come rolling up the steps carrying a great cake from Jennie—two or three. Phyllis and Myrtle, racing along with her—never light hearted friendships like these again.

Her thoughts crowded. They took the breath from her—made her faint. Finally she took up her purse.

And she went back and wiped off the top of her table with an old towel. As she did this a sudden question dashed against her like a blow. Did she have to go? Had Miss Simonds the rights, the exclusive right, to send her away?

Her muscles tightened. The blood went pounding to her head. There might be some one else—

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are newlyweds in a strange town. Recently an elderly couple called on us and left their cards. Two of the gentleman's cards were left, and one of his wife's.

Will you explain the point of etiquette involved?

When we return their call what is the proper manner with respect to leaving our own cards?

L. Y. D.

THE wife left her card for you, and the husband left one of his cards for you and one for your husband. That was correct. A lady leaves a card for every lady in the household, and a gentleman leaves a card for every lady and one for every gentleman. (However, not more than three of any one card are left.) A lady does not, of course, leave her card for a gentleman.

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

A young lady residing with her surviving parent, her father, desires to announce her engagement. Considerable discussion has been indulged in as to the most correct and appropriate form of announcement:

a. Should the announcement contain simply her name and the name of her prospective husband—or

b. Mr. John Doe begs to announce the engagement of his daughter, Dorothy, to Richard Roe.

INAMORATOR.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am in a professional office and frequently we have agents come into the office. The other day one came from out of town and I asked him for his card to know his name and business. He felt very much embarrassed because he hadn't any with him. Was I wrong in asking him?

HARRISBURG.

NO! he should have had a card, for this is a very important detail of his business. In these busy days he cannot expect business or professional men to receive him and to be impressed by his ability or efficiency if he doesn't supply the first requisite of a business call—a neat, easy, dignified announcement of his name and business. He should have been embarrassed.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for one to talk with one's escort during a theatre performance?

IN DOUBT.

BECAUSE this is selfish and inconsiderate of other people's comfort and pleasure, it is unkind, and anything that is unkind is not proper. There should be a special punishment for theatre-talkers.

PUTTING UP VEGETABLES.

IN canning vegetables remember that the vegetables themselves and everything with which they come in contact must be sterilized by heat and must be sealed at once to exclude all germs.

Remember too that only young and tender vegetables may be canned successfully. Also remember that almost any food substance except corn and shell beans, cooked in the can, will turn out successfully and will keep well if the sterilization process is continued until the vegetable is tender enough for serving providing that the jar is then filled to overflowing with boiling liquid and hermetically covered with a sterilized cover.

Corn and shell beans seem to be the most difficult of the vegetables to keep but if you will use the following recipe I do not believe you will ever have any more trouble.

CANNED CORN

Use Golden Bantam sweet corn, fresh picked and husked. Use only the pulp as the hull is more difficult to sterilize. Score the kernels in each lengthwise row on the ear, then with the back of the knife press out the pulp, leaving the hulls on the cob. As the pulp swells in cooking, the jars should be only 2-3 full.

Set the pulp to cook in three jars for each two jars that you want to fill. Set the jars in the cooker as usual, the covers beside them. Boil 15 to 20 minutes. Stir down the corn several times whenever it looks as though the pulp might rise over the top of the jar. When the corn pulp no longer puffs in cooking, fill the two jars from the third jar, let cook about ½ hour or more. Wipe the top of each jar, adjust the rubber rings and covers and cook again about ½ an hour. Then tighten the covers. If pulp puffs in cooking, fill the jars to the quantity of corn pulp is short. As I've said before be sure that your corn is tender and juicy else after the cooking the starchy cooked it is too tough and dry for successful canning.

Corn grows stale very quickly and loses its flavor therefore it should never be allowed to stand longer than a few minutes after being picked. Some people prefer to blanch the corn on the cobs from 2 to 3 minutes before cutting off the pulp. There are many other ways of cutting up corn but none that I have found as successful as this one.

There is a new way of canning tomatoes whole, whereby, when opened, the vegetable is about equal to the fresh product.

TOMATOES CANNED WHOLE

Blanch the tomatoes by dipping be basketfuls in boiling water for about 1 minute. Then hold under the cold water faucet and the skins can be readily removed. Leave the small tomatoes whole, cutting out the hard portion near the stem.

Cut the larger tomatoes in quarters. Sterilize your jars and covers in boiling water and fill the jars as full as possible with the prepared tomatoes and adjust your rubber rings. Set the jars in a large deep sauce pan or other vessel, on several folds of clean cloth. Pour a little boiling water into the dish standing on the cloth at one side to temper the jars. Then fill them to overflowing with boiling water.

Adjust the covers which you have taken from the boiling water, fastening them absolutely tight instead of leaving loose as in some recipes. Now pour boiling water around the jars to reach at least half their height. Cover the boiler and let it boil until the jars are cold. Do this and I know you will be delighted to find that you can use these tomatoes for salads or in any way in which the fresh vegetable is used.

CARROTS

Carrots for canning should be young, tender, fresh pulled, and more than 1½ inches in diameter.

Home Hints

Soap should never be rubbed on woolen silk. It should be dissolved in the water before you begin to launder the garment. Rinse in warm water. This you may add half a teaspoonful of blue ink to prevent any yellowish appearance.

* * *

The most economical way to remove stains from saucepans, both inside and out, is by rubbing with damp ashes. If ashes are not obtainable, try rubbing with damp hearthstone.

* * *

Sheets and tablecloths are best hung by folding six or seven inches over the line and then pegging up the two lower corners.

Sponge fruit stains on colored fabrics with ammonia and then with petrol.

No matter how badly silver and plated articles may be scratched, it is possible to remove the marks with a paste formed of olive oil and putty powder. The paste should be rubbed gently over the marks.

Wash them, scrape them carefully and pack them into sterilized jars. Pour luke warm water into the canner or cooker and when it boils fill the jars with boiling water. Cover the cooker and let the water boil until the carrots are nearly tender. Adjust the rubbers, adding salted boiling water in the proportion of 2½ oz. of salt to a gallon of water, set the lids in place, cook 10 minutes more and then cover tightly. Your carrots will look especially attractive if you place the circles in layers, fitting the second layer into the space left by the first layer and repeating until the jar is filled. The center should be filled in each outside layer is placed against the glass.

STRING BEANS

Be sure to pick your beans while they are young and tender and can then while they are very fresh. If the beans in the pods have grown to any size canning is more difficult and the finished product is poor. Cut off the ends of the beans, string them and cut them into inch or ½ inch lengths either straight across the pods or diagonally. I prefer mine cut diagonally.

Wash the beans in cold water and pack in sterilized jars shaking them down well. Set the filled jars into your steam cooker or other canning appliance, cover and let the jars heat gradually. Then fill each jar to overflowing with boiling water, cover, and let cook undisturbed until the beans are absolutely tender.

Adjust the rubbers, add salt—a teaspoonful to a quart—to a pitcher of boiling water and use it to fill the jars to overflowing. Set the lids in place, cover and let cook for about 20 minutes. Fasten the rubbers securely and remove the cans to a board out of a draught. When cold store in a dark place.

CANNED BABY BEETS

Wash and scrub baby beets, taking care not to break the skin or the roots. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Drain, cover with cold water and slip the skin off with your hands. Trim the top and bottom of the beets neatly and drop into a sterilized jar and place on a cloth in hot water.

Put in as many beets as the jar will hold, adjust the sterilized rubber rings, fill the jars to overflowing with boiling water. Set sterilized lid in place but do not fasten it. Set the jar in a steamer, cover, and let cook about 10 minutes. Then tighten the cover. If you haven't a steamer or similar utensil finish your beets in the oven.

Remember that jars must always be raised from the bottom of the kettle in which the water is boiling and each one must stand apart from the other, as if they touch each other they will break or crack at the point of contact.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"NOT at all," replied Tom grimly. "I know how to love. Irma will reap the benefit of that. It doesn't matter in what school I learned. The point is that I understand that sweet little creature and how to make her happy. I gave her the thrills and color and romance she craves. Now if you and that dull old uncle of Irma's don't shut her up in a tower, I'll win. I may even win if you try to come between us!"

"I—resent your attitude!" I protested with blazing eyes.

"I know you do. But Irma loves it. And it is Irma I want to make happy!"

"But I don't believe you can. You aren't her sort. Tom Mason, do one big, generous thing—won't you?"

"Don't you think I did when I let that delicate little Daisy go?" asked Tom in a tone which took all the heroism and chivalry even from that.

"You've no right to Irma," I cried. "You've no right to make her love you"—

"Have you a right to try to stop me?" asked Tom Mason grimly. "And don't you know enough about human nature to realize that the more you fight against me, the more something in Irma's heart will fight for me?"

I smiled at Tom understandingly.

"Are you suggesting that if I were a clever diplomat, I could do nothing better than to favor you?" I stopped, for my own words had given me an idea.

But I wasn't sure I could act upon it.

"If you were a clever diplomat, you'd remember the old saw: 'Heads I lose—tails you win,'" said Tom Mason without mincing matters. He stood swaying down the law to me in the hallway of my own apartment.

"Come into the living room and we'll finish this discussion more comfortably." I suggested, thinking less of the big chairs in the living room than of Irma's door just a little way up the hall from where we were standing.

Facing Tom after he had followed me to the living room, I demanded abruptly, and with a forced show of ease and lightness:

"Are you telling me that I stand to lose, no matter what I try to do in the Warren-Mason situation?"

"It looks like that, doesn't it?" asked Tom complacently.

"You think that if Mr. Haldane and I appose your suit, Irma will naturally fly to your defense. That is supposed to be normal psychology, I know. But do you think you appear like a defenceless babe, and that we seem like cruel persecutors?"

"The point is well taken," smiled Tom, offering me a chair with an elaborate gallantry that made my blood boil. "Now what, my dear Penta Anne?"

Retaining a tight hold on my irritated nerves, I asked:

"You just suggested that if I favored your suit—even so far as to know you and Irma at each other—she might give a proper exhibition of supposed feminine contrariness and lose interest. Can't you see that you're confessing you've no real foundation on which to build? If you and Irma Warren were right for each other would there be all this need for discussion?"

"Who started it?" asked Tom with a grin which brought out the heavy-lidded sensuousness of his eyes.

"I think you did—this time," I smiled.

"You've opposed me from the start," he said grimly. "Can you tell me why—in so many words?"

"Yes," I ventured. "I've seen you philandering too often to believe in the lasting quality of any emotion you feel. I'm being brutal. But you invited it."

"You consider me for once admiring you?" asked Tom pointedly.

"If you were a sidetrack me by trying to embarrass me," I said firmly. "But a man who doesn't hesitate to express his admiration for other men's wives—"

"Meaning yourself for one?"

"Meaning Valerie Cosby. Also meaning Daisy Bloodie. I replied coolly. "A man who hasn't hesitated to follow the lead of his every fancy, isn't the right man for a sweet, simple, old-fashioned girl like Irma Warren. He can't make her happy. I feel responsible for bringing you together."

CHINESE FORCES LINING UP FOR BIG BATTLE

Rival Factions Massing at Ninsiang; Sun Yat Sen Is Heading Expedition

Washington, Sept. 3.—Reinforcements from the Asiatic naval squadrons of the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan have been ordered to Shanghai to protect their nationals. Dr. Wellington Koo, Peking foreign minister, was warned by the diplomatic agents of the four powers that a naval battle "could not be tolerated."

Shanghai, Sept. 3. (A.P.)—With fighting at Hwangtu, near here, in progress at 4 o'clock this afternoon between the contending armies of two rival provincial Chinese governors, reports received here indicated that the battle lines were extending toward the coast in the direction of Woosung.

A report to the Dah Tong, a Chinese News Agency, from Hong Kong says that Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, rival of Chang Tso-Lin, military dictator of Manchuria, is planning a northern expedition with his Hunan, Kiangsi and Kwangtung troops.

Reports from Mukden received by the same news agency say that 2 Manchurian armies are moving toward the great wall from two directions.

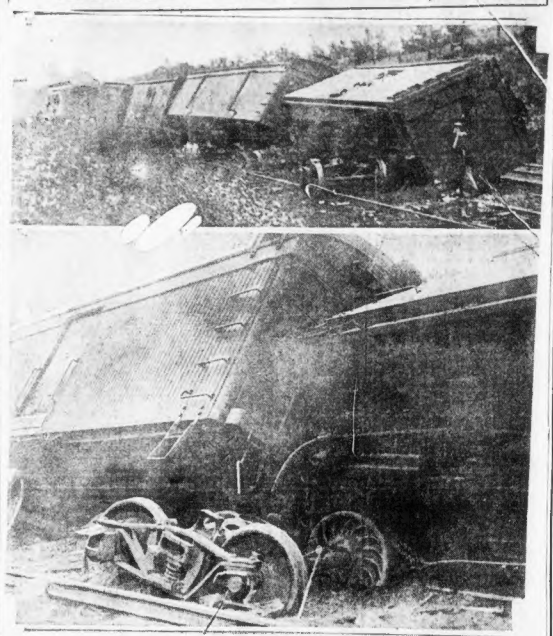
The eastern column is reported to be proceeding along the Liao River with Changtehfu, a city 110 miles northeast of Peking, as its immediate objective, while the western column is moving toward Chinchow.

Although a large number of troops are engaged in the conflict, reports received here from Chekiang say that no material advance has been gained by either side.

It is said that the engagement today is preliminary to a major battle at Ninsiang tomorrow, twelve miles from Shanghai.

According to information given out from Lungwha military headquarters, the first shots were fired at Hwangiu by the northern troops after Chi Shieh-Yuan had moved large reinforcements to Hwangtu.

DERAILED TRAIN AT WOBURN



TORN UP TIE WRECKS MILK CARS

Nine cars laden with 33,000 gallons of milk for Boston were wrecked near the Walnut Hill station of the Boston & Maine railroad in Woburn when a dragging truck of the ninth car tore up a tie from the roadbed and wrecked the train. The whole train is pictured in the upper photo while a closer view of the eighth and ninth cars is shown in the lower.

MRS. HARRIMAN HAS WON WAY TO FILMS

New York, Sept. 3.—After two years of steadfastness in her ambition to become a motion picture actress, Mrs. John Harriman, formerly the ward of Howard Chandler Christy, has obtained the consent of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, to take up a screen career.

The younger Mrs. Harriman, who was Miss Alice A. Laidley, married her husband two years ago when they were both nineteen years old. The bride then was an accomplished musician and dancer and had ambitions to become a motion picture actress, but the Harriman family suggested that she wait two years. At the end of this period the young woman was sure of her wishes and the Harrimans gave their consent.

FAIL TO FIND PROOF OF LIFE ON MARS

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 3.—Astronomers who have been observing Mars through telescopes at Lick Observatory have thus far found no evidence of life on the planet, according to Dr. R. G. Aitken, associate director of the observatory.

"We do not see the fine network of canals sometimes portrayed and reported to have been seen by other astronomers," he said. "We do see markings of various kinds that look more natural than artificial. We have no evidence so far that any of these markings are other than natural."

BUSINESS IMPROVING IN GERMAN RHINELAND

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Dispatches from the Rhineland and from Leipsic, where the Fall fair now is in progress, indicate improved conditions in commercial, industrial and banking circles — an improvement which already had become evident in Berlin since the ratification of the laws for putting the Dawes plan into effect. The wine, tobacco and shoe trades in the Rhineland and the Bavarian Palatinate are reported increasingly active.

NOT RELATIVE OF MRS. SYLVIA CLIFFORD

Mrs. Sylvia Clifford, who lives with her mother at No. 70 Glenville avenue, Brighton, is not in any way related to John J. Clifford, who was taken from another apartment in the same house yesterday, suffering from morphine poisoning.

Reports of the raid on Clifford's apartment and the arrest of two men charged with having drugs in their possession made it appear that Mrs. Clifford was his sister.

She made it plain today that she not only is no relative of the morphine victim, but does not know him.

FUNERAL OF POLICE CAPTAIN REARDON HELD

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson paid tribute to Captain Charles T. Reardon in announcing his death to the department in a general order.

Funeral services for the late captain were held this morning, when a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill.

9 B. & M. CARS WRECKED IN WOBURN

milk train was making fifty miles an hour.

Commuters from Walnut Hill were discommoded by the accident, being without train service for an hour or more.

Otherwise there was no great inconvenience, as trains Boston-bound were sent in over the Woburn loop while the wreck was being cleaned up.

The escape of the train crew in the caboose of the milk train was little short of miraculous. While all the other cars in the train left the track and piled up along the roadway, the caboose remained on the tracks, the conductor and brakeman of the train escaped unharmed.

WRECK CREWS SENT OUT.

The wrecking crews of the railroad from Boston were sent to the scene of the wreck within a few minutes.

The roadbed was torn up for a distance of more than 100 yards, and it was near noon before the lines were again open to traffic.

Commuters from Walnut Hill were without train service for several hours and scores of commuters were forced to use trolleys to get into Boston.

Immediately following the accident officials of the road instituted an investigation to determine the cause of the wreck. Members of the crew of the wrecked train have been summoned for a hearing which will be held later in the week.

GIRL MOTHER SHIELDS MEN WHO DESERTED HER

Mansfield, Sept. 3.—A 22-year-old girl, who refuses to give any name save "Mrs. Lawrence of Nova Scotia," has defied the Mansfield authorities, despite the fact that she faces removal to the town farm as a public charge.

The girl became a mother shortly after she arrived at the Thomas House on Sunday, but despite her condition, she has refused to tell the authorities anything about herself, or the three men who drove her here in an automobile and then deserted her.

FOUR DEAD ON U. S. ISLAND IN HURRICANE

Washington, Sept. 3.—A comprehensive account of the hurricane which swept the Virgin Islands last Thursday night, received today from Captain Philip Williams, the naval governor, minimized previous reports of casualties and property damage. It declared: "No casualties were reported in St. Thomas beyond minor injuries and exposure, while St. John, chief sufferer of the American island group, escaped with four inhabitants killed, one missing and a considerable number injured."

CHARGE HUSBAND FED HIS WIFE RAT POISON

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 3 (I.N.S.)—Accused of having killed his wife with rat poison fed to her in cake, Tomasso Giuliano, thirty-one, of Frankfort, is under arrest today on a first degree murder charge. His arrest came within one hour after the woman's death.

SHOTS HALT 3 ROBBERS IN LYNN FLIGHT

Another Escapes After Band Is Caught Looting Supply Firm's Safe

A daring break for liberty by two burglars after being trapped breaking into a safe in the office of the Cambridge Supply Company, Lynn, was halted by a fusillade of shots from policemen.

The robbers heard the police coming and three started to run. There were four of them. One tried to hide under the stairs of the second floor, another disdained to run at all and waited for the police to put the handcuffs on, while the other two made a break out the back door and started to climb the fence.

The policemen stationed outside opened fire on them and other officers followed them from the office. This discouraged one of them, who dropped back and surrendered, but the other threw himself over and escaped.

The three arrested identified themselves as Michael J. Garvey of No. 88A Sumner street, East Boston; Arthur Dignan of No. 17 Prospect street, Charlestown, and Dominick Nigro of No. 9 Paris street, East Boston.

Dignan was identified by Mildred Otto of No. 587 Columbia road, Dorchester, as one of the men she saw running from Liggett's drugstore near her home when the store safe was robbed of $1,500.

Boston and Chelsea police also looked over the three men, and believe they are members of a gang that has been making breaks in Greatr Boston for some time past.

In Lynn court Judge Reeve held them in $6,000 each for the grand jury.

'PEACE PARLEY' IN SCHOOL 'REBELLION'

Pupils in West Bridgewater Attend Session After Promise Is Made

West Bridgewater, Sept. 3.—The "peace parley" idea was injected today into the school war which opened with heavy artillery yesterday when the school board transferred fifteen lower grade pupils from a special room in the High School building to a renovated building two miles away.

When school sessions were begun in the fifth grade at the East School, a building long disused, but repaired during the summer months, Miss Katherine White, the teacher, could see only three pupils in attendance.

The parents of the other fifteen children belonging to the class refused to send them the added two miles and demanded the use of the room in the High School building, as in past years.

Today the school committee promised to hold a hearing at which the parents of all children in the transferred class will be given opportunity to put their side of the controversy out to air.

On the strength of this promise the fifteen missing pupils were missing today no more from their desks.

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

SECOND SECTION

HER DOG HAS GONE FOR THE 53D TIME

MISS KATHERINE DODGE

Help!

Turn out the guard!

Call the police!

Assemble the Boy Scouts!

Gambolling "Governor," the roving Great Dane-German mastiff, owned by Miss Katherine Dodge of No. 619 Comonwealth avenue, is out again.

For the fifty-third time since he came into Miss Dodge's possession, "Governor" has succumbed to the wanderlust, and gone rambling.

Said to be the only dog of his breed in this country, he is five years old and weighs 160 pounds. The huge animal is well known to policemen and dog fanciers, who have returned him to his home many times in the past four years.

Normally "Governor" is a model of propriety, but every now and then he gets a restless feeling in his feet and steps out to see the world.

His present absence without leave occurred even weeks ago while Miss Dodge, a well known Radcliffe graduate and society girl, was in Baltimore.

Five weeks later "Boy," a huge shepherd police dog, also the property of Miss Dodge, pulled up stakes and "took it on the lam," as the saying is. Whether or not he became lonesome for "Governor" and went looking for him, is a problem.

PRINCE IS SWAMPED BY LOVE NOTES

GIRLS SEND PHOTOS TO 'DEAR EDDIE'

New York, Sept. 3 (Universal).—Universal Service begs the indulgence of H. R. H., the Prince of Wales for circulating excerpts fro mlove letters which have been sent the royal traveler by American girls.

Inasmuch as it is leap year, local beauties have seized the opportunity to propose marriage to the heir to the British throne.

Miss Marie Mayo, No. 300 Lexington ave., Brooklyn, is brief and to the point:

"DEAR EDDIE."

"To his Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales.

"Dear Eddie:

I am writing this letter to propose to you. I have black hair, black eyes and an olive skin. My teeth are pearly white. I can't hope that you will choose me for your bride, yet I will prize the honor of having written to you. It is a colorful moment in an otherwise drab life.

"Sincerely,

"Marie Mayo."

"YOU'RE DIFFERENT."

Miss Chrire Marx, No. 60 Eldridge street, New York, writes:

"Dear Ed.—True, it is leap year. Yet, ordinarily, I would never enter my mind to propose marriage to a man. But you're different. The fact that you're here induces me to make the move. I confess I can't control my emotions.

"Whether I'm the fortunate one or not, I will be consoled with the knowledge that I at least competed for the hand of the Prince of Wales."

SENDS BATHING PHOTO.

Miss Elvira Renzi, No. 337 Third avenue, New York, writes:

"I have written to you twice before, and I sent you two of my pictures, but they weren't so good, so I'm sending you another.

"Dear Prince, I hope you won't be angry with me because the first pictures I sent you happened to have been taken in a bathing suit. Won't you acknowledge this letter and tell me whether you got my other letters or not?

"Excuse my handwriting. I've a sore finger and it interferes somewhat."

ONE MORE WILD NIGHT.

The Prince spent another night out last night. He arose at noon today at the Burden place, his holiday home, after less than seven hours' sleep, for he did not get in until a few minutes after 5 o'clock this morning.

The Prince spent the night at the homes of various friends, beginning with a dinner party at the Henry Rogers Winthrop house and ending with a late supper at the home of Vincent Astor.

It was the second time in as many days that the royal visitor had taken to his bed after the sun's arrival. It was only yesterday that he returned to the Burden home after sunrise after a night spent in dining, dancing and chatter.

The Prince planned to go to the F. Ambrose Clark place this afternoon to look after his eight polo ponies, three of which were lame after the hard game in which the future King of Britain rode them yesterday.

LEOPOLD MAKES WILL, EXPECTING TO HANG

Chicago, Sept. 3.—The last will and testament of Nathan F. Leopold, jr., joint confessor with Richard A. Loeb of the kidnaping and murder of Bobby Franks, has been made public.

That Leopold contemplates the possibility of receiving a death sentence at the hands of Judge Caverly, who now has the murder case under consideration, is evinced by a letter he has mailed to Clarence S. Darrow, defence counsel.

The latter bequeaths to the Field Museum first choice of any five objects in Leopold's ornithological collection. Next choice is given to a cousin of Leopold, who may choose of any three articles after the museum has made its selection. Third, the museum is given to choice of any of Leopold's birds, minerals or manuscripts.

"BEFORE EXECUTION."

In the letter Leopold asked Darrow to notify the beneficiaries as soon as possible—and before his execution. The letter also thanked Darrow for his closing arguments.

Leopold wrote that he had been content to die before he heard that argument, but that after hearing it he wanted to live. The last will was scratched out under a county jail arc light on paper supplied by the jailer.

Leopold also has completed plans for attempts to pierce the veil of coming death, if he is hanged. Although he is an admitted skeptic, he says he will not cast out any suggestion on the possibility of an after life until he has had an opportunity to demonstrate its invalidity. So he has prepared ten questions which the plans should he die on the gallows. The questions are:

"Are the experiences of human life carried into the hereafter?

"Is the intellectual or the spiritual the dominant note after death?

"Is the absence of the physical hence an advantage or a detriment to such intellectual or spiritual happiness?

LIFE HERE NECESSARY?

"Is the hereafter dimensional as on earth or is there complete enlargement?

"Does one retain reactions to sensations registered on the mind previous to death?

"Is life on earth a necessary precedent to life hereafter? If so, how long a life?

"If the intellectual is dominant in the hereafter is earthly knowledge adequate or insufficient to its enjoyment?

"Is life on earth a correct balance of rewards and penalties, or is there a higher judgment?

"If life hereafter is spiritual, are the cultural experiences on earth necessary? What of the savage mind?

"What is happiness?

Leopold plans to make a speah if he is sent to the gallows.

"And I will say something that will make the world listen," he added.

2 "Mikes" Used for B. A. Orchestra Last Night

Did you notice anything different in the sound of the Boston American Philharmonic orchestra at the last night's concert?

Those with ears trained to nice differences in musical tones reported an improvement in the sound of the bass notes and particularly in the bass drum.

This was the result of an experiment by Major Fanning, who put in an extra microphone, so that two microphones, connected in parallel, picked up the music.

Note the difference next week.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON LIBERTY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LIBERTY is like everything else. It can be carried to extremes.

When Mme. Roland, on her way to execution, exclaimed: "O Liberty, what crimes have been committed in thy name!" she had in mind liberty carried to an extreme.

There is no liberty, of a practical nature, in the world, that is not limited by the demands of others. And only those experience the delights of liberty who are the readiest to admit those demands.

The fall of the Bastille and its destruction by the people of Paris, on July 14, will forever remain a symbol of the fact that anarchy is the inevitable result of incompetent government.

The only way to establish a lasting government is first to see that it stands for equality of all before the law and, secondly, to recognize that, in most things the people are to be free to do as they please.

When government becomes occupied merely in continuing itself, and when with this purpose it tramples upon the rights of the people, it is sowing conditions which will create the revolution which will overthrow it. France learned this great lesson and helped to teach it to the world.

America stands for the same thing and, in its way, England recognizes the same truth, that the peace and prosperity of a government depend upon the peace and prosperity of its people.

It has long been recognized by students of political economy that that government is safest which can most easily be put out of office and that the natural check to the tyrannical evidences of governments is the people themselves. The more educated and intelligent its people the firmer is its government. For the government will recognize that the limits of its powers are always set by the will of the people. And, furthermore, that that government is surest which is founded upon popular good will.

Both the French and the American revolutions constituted a warning to all governments that the inevitable effect of tyrannical governmental incompetency, is revolution. The frequent revolutions in the South American republics illustrate the same thing. It is not only necessary to give to the people the kind of government that is best for them, but it is necessary for them to realize what is best. In order to maintain its security a government must be founded upon the popular approval of its people whether that government be a pure democracy, a republic or a limited monarchy.

The effect of tyranny, whether it is that of the Bourbons of France, of the reactionaries in England, or the tyrants in Russia, is always the same.

STRAIN OF DOUBLE CHALLENGE FORCING GIANTS TO CRACK

NEW YORK WOBBLING BADLY

By NICK FLATLEY

JOHN McGRAW, who has steered his present New York Giants to three National League championships, is sick these days, as his ball club is something like John. The Giants look good in one game, and a little worse than terrible in the next. They are, in put it baldly, wobbly under the worry of a long pursuit that wouldn't be shaken off. Several times in the past Summer the champs were far enough to the front to make ultimate victory almost certain. But nothing is really that in baseball. First the Pirates socked the Giants four in a row, and by grabbing an entire series made a race of the National League affair.

* * *

THEN the McGraws ran ahead once more. They stretched half a dozen games between themselves and the Corsairs, and were apparently sitting pretty once more. But the Brooklyn Dodgers came roaring into the picture. First, they flayed the Pittsburgh entry, after the latter had smacked the Giants. Then they proceeded to mop up the champions. The Robbies, by taking the two toughest clubs in the league in succession, stamped themselves real contenders. They have made a more remarkable record in the past month than any team in baseball.

* * *

THEIR drive has been sustained and vicious. They are getting lucky now—winning games with rookie pitchers, and things like that. They have a great staff of three, which will undoubtedly keep on stuffing right down to the finish. On past performances we should imagine the Giants fear said Robins much more than they do the Pirates. The western team, in history; the Brooklyn number has been steady as a clock. It isn't a star layout—just a bunch of good, regular performers. That's the sort of crew that figures best to stand the gaff in a driving finish.

* * *

WE aren't counting the Giants out. The club has been hauled back in other races, and has recovered and stepped on to glory. But the former battles have been with one popeyed trailer. Two clubs, equally infected with the pennant idea are something else again. The old McGraw, with his own fire on the bench, would drive his athletes almost regardless. An ailing McGraw can't do that little thing. Except for pitching, the Giants are far and away the best club. But pitching, in a three-cornered race, is just a fraction more than ninety-nine percent.

MISS HOLLINS' GOLF DEFEAT BIG SURPRISE

Nyatt, R. I., Sept. 3.—Miss Marion Hollins, former champion, fell out of the woman's golf championship at the hands of the veteran International star, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who was on the winning end of a 4 and 3 score. All the other favorites came through for the second round, to be contested today.

Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, and Miss Ellith Cummings, Chicago, defending champions, came through without difficulty. Their opponents were outclassed. Miss Collett winning from Miss Ruth Batchelder of Boston by a 4 and 3 score, and Miss Cummings taking her game from Mrs. E. D. Baker, Jr., Boston, by a 6 and 4 score.

An unfortunate incident marked the play when Mrs. Fred C. Lotis, Jr., Chicago, long a prominent figure in the game, was taken ill after playing nine holes and forced to default to Mrs. J. Renwick of New York.

She was found to have suffered from the heat and while her condition was not serious she was unable to continue in the tournament.

The round was a fortunate one for the younger players who are coming to the front. This was especially noticeable when Miss Bernice Wall, youthful Wisconsin State champion, defeated the veteran Mrs. Roland Barlow of Philadelphia 3-2.

Carpentier Sails Today

QUINN TO FACE YANKEES IN LAST GAME

New York, Sept. 3.—The Red Sox take their last whack at the world's champion Yankees in New York today. Old Jack Quinn, always effective against his old team, most likely will pitch. Fohl would have started Quinn yesterday, but the boat was so intense he saved the veteran spitballer for another day.

The Red Sox will be asked to assist in the big league baptism of Walter Heidi, Huggins' new pitching star from Rochester. Heidi stood the International League batsmen on their heads, but he has still to try his luck in the American League. Huggins warmed him up for the second game yesterday, but changed his mind, and sent out Bush.

The Red Sox gave Washington a little lift by holding the Yankees to an even break in the double header yesterday. The Boston boys surely did some terrific socking in the first game of that bargain bill, and rather made up for their lack of hits on Labor Day. When the smoke cleared away the Red Sox had eighteen hits for a total of twenty-six bases and fourteen runs. Joe Harris had four, including a double, and Joseph, once a Yank for a day, carried in four runs.

Danny Clark entered the list of immortals who have whacked a homer with bases full. Danny bounced a rather lucky homer into a left field box, just out of Meusel's grasp, with Wamby, Harris and Veach on the bases.

Howard Ehmke survived one bad inning in the first game, but he had a healthy lead to fall back on.

Ferguson walked Ruth in the first inning of the second game, but it didn't work. Singles by Pipp and Meusel and a double steal followed, giving the Yanks three runs as a starter, that's more than the Sox made off Joe Bush in nine innings, so the Yanks took this encounter by a fairly comfortable margin.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

THIS Winter and every Winter several great steamers will sail from America laden with happy tourists bound around the world. The steamers are seven hundred feet long or more, contain half a dozen passenger decks requiring the use of elevators, and are to all intents and purposes great floating hotels.

What a far cry it is from the 25,000-ton liner to the little ship in which Captain Cook put a girdle round the earth. At various places the big ships touch the borders will hear of Captain Cook—how he discovered this certain country, how he charted this ocean, how he explored this island and how he was finally murdered by a horde of savages in Hawaii, now a civilized and peaceful colony of the United States.

Captain James Cook was the son of a village laborer in Cleveland, Yorkshire, Eng., where he was born in 1728. When he was twelve years of age he was apprenticed to a haberdasher, and failing here was put to work for a firm of ship-owners at Whitby, which gave him his first taste for the sea. After passing as a common sailor in this service he rose to be mate of a vessel and then joined the royal navy, where his rise was rapid, considering that he was not a gentleman in the English sense.

The great voyages of Captain Cook lasted three years. He sailed some 70,000 miles, circumnavigating the earth and sailing its surface thoroughly, particularly the Southern Hemisphere, that he covered three times in actual circumference. His discoveries and observations on New Zealand and Australia, then known as New Holland, were of monthlies for the British securing these vast islands from the weak grasp of the Dutch.

Among the many islands he discovered in the Pacific were the Hawaiian group, which he named the Sandwich Islands, after the Earl of Sandwich, then head of the Admiralty. It was during his third and last voyage, on which he intended to discover a northwest passage across Alaska to the Atlantic, that Cook met his death.

The Helping Hand

Wants Airedale Boy

Helping Hand Editor:

Has anyone an airedale dog or another kind of breed that is kind and gentle, yet would make a good watch dog, that they would care to give up in the country with good people? Dog must be fond of children as I have just one baby, 14 months. I want this dog for protection and to be not over one year. Write at once, giving full details. A good home to the right dog.

Boy For Adoption

Helping Hand Editor:

Is there some good person who would like to adopt a healthy boy of six months? We will give full surrender. He should have some more than we could give him as $15 a week is not much to feed and clothe five on. I am in poor health and cannot take efforts next Spring. I would call with the baby if accepted. He is a good loving darling—light hair and blue eyes.

MRS. M. L. S.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney

Boston Health Commissioner.

AMERICAN taxpayers spend annually three times as much on candy and soda water as they do on the American navy.

Congressman Drewry of Virginia reminded Congress of this staggering amount when he objected to appropriations.

In 1923 we spent $250,000,000 on candy alone. Small wonder the Southern Congressman signed aside. "Shall Dr. Mahoney inquiry begin with lollypops and ice cream or shall it start with national defenses?"

The literally advertising of candy manufacturers has let loose a flood of packages of candy and bars of candies in convenient sizes and prices, with the result that each year sees the consumption of many more tons of candy in railways and trains and anywhere the fruitful newsstand selling.

The second regrettable effect is that upon the children. The bright-colored lollypop, the chocolate bar and the small package of candy have become the regular luncheon and between-meals fillip of youngsters.

Candy, of course, is sugar and sugar is one of the most quickly digested foods and one which furnishes energy for work, play or to keep the heat of the body normal.

But—and here's the rub—while sugar is a food, it is far from necessary as a body fuel. One may live a normal span of life without ever tasting sugar. Whole races of mankind have done it as well as many of our ancestors.

Sugar is almost impossible to convince people of this. They persist in the idea that sugar is essential, because it is called carbonaceous with their desires. A contributing factor, perhaps is the statement of nutrition experts that the body needs a quarter of sugar.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

My face breaks out all the time. Any suggestions? Is it healthy? C. C.

Think that there are two things which are responsible for your condition. One is constipation, the other the fact that you are so constipated. Both may be corrected readily. For the second I would suggest that you take cold carbonated water and also take cold applesauce morning and night, designed to attack the muscular wall of the colon.

Do not bathe any more in cholin after exercise. What could I do?

Why not? Use it as a tonic.

You may be slightly underweight. Try a good bowel action.

I have a protruding stomach. Please tell me what will help it.

Exercises designed to strengthen the abdominal wall should help you. See also protruding abdomen. Posture is one of the best correctors of such troubles.

YOUNG MAN HAS BIG CHANCES TODAY

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Whenever I hear young men today bemoaning their alleged lack of opportunity, it makes me sorry for them, but not for the reason they might suppose.

There never was a time when so many opportunities for advancement in the world of business and finance presented themselves.

These opportunities, furthermore, are not restricted to any special line, but lie in nearly all lines.

The key to success is work, rightly performed. No one ever got ahead by "loafing on the job." No employer wants to hire a slacker. No ambitious young man ever loafs when he is working for himself.

The ambitious worker is not satisfied with merely performing his required labor. He tries to do his work at least a little better than the next fellow, and is constantly seeking to improve upon it. He does not keep his eyes upon the clock or upon the commuter's timetable. He is not afraid to miss the first train that takes him to leisure or amusement. Such a worker seldom has occasion to bemoan alleged "lack of opportunity."

Leading fertilizer companies are trying to work out a plan which will stabilize the industry and which will prevent future conditions like that through which the industry has just passed. What form these plans will take is entirely unknown outside of the little group which have them under consideration. One possibility which has been suggested is pool production of some of the essential ingredients by a single low-cost producer in an effort to cut the heavy costs which have borne the industry down during the last couple of years.

Wall Street is watching with a great deal of interest the battle for business now waged by the two great mail order companies, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. One thing it has discovered in recent months is that the latter is gradually cutting down the margin between the gross sales of the two corporations. Reports from both yesterday showed that Montgomery Ward sales of $10,-232,893 for August represented an increase of 22.64 per cent. over the same month last year, whereas the sales of the Sears-Roebuck company were relatively lower than in August, 1923.

The same was true of the total sales for the eight months ended with August. How the margin between the sales of the companies is being cut down is revealed in a comparison of reports for this year and last. In August, 1923, Sears-Roebuck was $5,483,867, or about 65 per cent. ahead of Montgomery Ward. Last month the difference was but $3,143,423, or about 30 per cent. For the eight months' period last year Sears-Roebuck had the edge on its competitor by $56,288,135, shipping about 68 per cent. more than the latter, while for the same period this year the margin was $37,093,811, or about 29 per cent.

ISLAND CREEK COAL'S PRODUCTION IS SHADED

Island Creek Coal Co. in the month just closed produced 466,-000 tons of coal. This compares with about 473,000 tons in July, the biggest month in the history of the company. The slight reduction is due to the vacation season, many employes who have been operating on a high-pressure production schedule taking a few days off.

Thus in July and August has the Island Creek Coal Co. produced at the rate of over 5,500,000 tons of coal a year, exceeding by far any previous annual production since it began operations.

FLORENCE MANUFACTURING SHIFTS TO A NEW NAME

Corporate name of Florence Manufacturing Co. of Florence, has been changed to Pro-Phy-Lac-Tic Brush Co. The Massachusetts company, succeeding to the business of the old corporation, which was established in 1906, will continue to produce as its principal product the widely advertised Pro-Phy-Lac-Tic toothbrush. Change in name will in no way affect the management or conduct of the business, which has remained in the same hands for the past twenty-five years. An announcement of new financing is expected to be made shortly by a banking house.

PROFIT-TAKING SENDS STOCKS DOWNWARD

After a firm opening in which railroad stocks led the way to slightly higher prices the New York stock market was called on at absorb a heavy load to profit-taking sales with short selling in the high price specialty and poolstocks and prices again exhibited a distinctly downward trend.

Bearish pressure was particularly evident against the specialty stocks which have been moving forward with little reaction in the last few weeks.

The steel stocks exhibited a reaction trend from the start and selling of the independent steel stocks caused fractional losses in all the active issue.

Under the leadership of the Van Sweringen railroad stocks, the market for rail shares was steady and fairly active in the first hour, Nickel Plate going to a new high on the movement, with Erie and Pere Marquette active and fractionally higher.

The profit trend in sugar and other household commodities which has been in evidence for a few weeks, has been reflected in a firmness for stocks of representative companies. Sugar stock sold higher and so did the stocks of prominent mercantile establishments and chain stores.

The decline in call money rates to 2¼ per cent. was one of the most favorable market factors. Renewals were made at 2½ per cent.

In trading on the Boston Stock Exchange Eastern Massachusetts Eastern Steamship and New England Telephone were up a point or better, the last-named in heated anticipation of granting of rate advances. Calumet & Arizona yielded a point.

'I PLAY SAFE' LAUDED BY JOHNSON

"The Boston American never espoused a better cause than its 'I Play Safe' plan," said Dr. David J. Johnson, City of Boston Commissioner of Institutions in lauding the campaign of this newspaper to make the roads safe.

"This cause is right, it is humane," said Dr. Johnson. "'Play Safe' and influence others to do so."

In addition he said:

"I play safe" is preventive medicine applied to safeguarding life undangered by ever increasing automobile traffic.

The grief of a family for a member who meets death by accident perhaps so suddenly that there is no chance for farewell or good-bye is particularly poignant and in most cases ineffacable.

Surely the one, who, by carelessness, caused such a death and brought such grief must carry the bitter remorse of it as long as memory lasts.

"Play Safe" for your own sake as well as for others. The best driver I have known in twenty-two years of auto driving lost his life by not playing safe on a wet road. Sedrino, the great race track driver was killed by taking a chance instead of playing safe and so with innumerable others.

THE LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Story of a Cambridgeport minister who wanted to be of help to workingmen; how he gathered some young men of Harvard around him and what came of their adventure in social service.

Remember the opposition to University Extension as part of the educational work of Massachusetts? Last year, the Extension classes had 27,176 ADULT members and 6,342 taught by mail.

Eighteen Hundred Opportunities for Minute Men Who "Left School Too Early"

WE ARE in receipt of the following communication from a reader in Dorchester:

"I have just returned from a vacation in the mountains, in the course of which things happened which have caused me to think seriously of trying to better my condition of life. My problem is that I am thirty-three years old and my question is whether that is too old to go to college. My father died in my second year in high school and my mother being left without means, it was necessary for me to quit school and go to work. Financially, I am not badly situated.

"My bent is towards the law. I know, in a general way, that there are several law schools in Boston which provide evening courses. Will you name them for me, tell me where they are situated, explain how many evenings a week and how many hours I must give and, if allowable, state the cost of tuition?"

J. D. B., who writes the above letter, probably will be surprised to learn that in the University Extension classes of the State Department of Education of Massachusetts there were enrolled, last year, 27,176 ADULT pupils.

And that 6,342 other ADULTS, following the University Extension courses of the State Department of Education, received their instruction by mail.

Thirty-three too old to study, to go to college? By no means!

Educators appear to be agreed that, provided he has kept his mentality alert by exercise, the adult makes the BEST student. He goes ahead rapidly, if he means business, because of his experience with life.

The boy of sixteen goes to college because his Dad wants him to go; because other boys of his acquaintance are going; because it is the thing to do.

The adult, when he comes to J. D. B.'s position and circumstances, goes to college because he WANTS to go; goes with a purpose. He desires an education and nine times out of ten he gets what he goes after.

Three law schools in Boston, to answer J. B. D.'s question, maintain evening courses.

In alphabetical order, these schools are the Northeastern University School of Law, the Portia Law School and the Suffolk Law School. In each case the course is of four years. For each of the first three years the cost of tuition is $100. The rate of the Suffolk Law School remains at the same figure for the fourth year; the other schools charge $110 for that year. Portia, as the name suggests, is for women students, only.

The law course at Northeastern University will call for your evenings from September to June; that of the Portia Law School is from September to May. Classes at Suffolk School are held on Monday, Tuesday and Friday evenings.

Our best advice to J. D. B., and to other readers who may have similar ambitions, is that he present himself without delay at the Prospect Union Educational Exchange, in Central Square, Cambridge, and have a heart to heart talk with the alert young director of that institution, Mr. Charles A. Gates. The term by which this sort of conference is usually described is, we believe, "vocational counselling." Heart to heart talk is much better.

If J. D. B. is a young man of the period, a "wise" young man, he is about to say at this point:

"Yes, and how much is THAT going to cost?"

The answer is nothing; nothing whatever, not a penny!

Prospect Union Educational Exchange is an ENDOWED agency organized to promote the education of the gainfully occupied ADULT.

It provides INFORMATION, about schools, courses and classes in Greater Boston.

It provides personal advice and counsel to individuals wishing direction.

Prospect Union Educational Exchange is NOT ITSELF A SCHOOL. It co-operates with schools which have been investigated and, upon sufficient demand, promotes the establishment of special classes.

It attempts to discover gaps in our educational system and to encourage the establishment of the facilities which appear lacking.

Back in the years 1891-1892, it occurred to the young minister of a mission chapel in Cambridgeport, re-enforcing his usefulness by taking some Harvard courses, that some of his fellow students might help him by bringing what they had learned in their college work to the working-men of the "Lower Port."

The plan was welcomed so warmly, and the example of the young leader was so contagious, that rooms were rented in a Cambridgeport tavern called the "Prospect House." The name has the advantage of a vague suggestion of hope and progress—prospect!—without carrying any specific significance, but in reality is a mere survival of that first primitive lodging of the Union.

Year after year Harvard men by the score enlisted in this fraternal campaign. In 1910, there were 500 members, 300 of them in evening classes.

Hundreds of hand-workers trace the beginnings of their larger usefulness and responsibility to the instruction received and the friends made in "old" Prospect Union. Harvard students learned to understand and respect men bred in the hard school of labor. The wage-earner, on his side, discovered that a Harvard man might be neither snob nor prig.

At that time—more than thirty years ago, remember—there was nothing else in Greater Boston quite like this school. "Except for Prospect Union," lamented one of the early reports of Andover (now South End) House, "university extension may be said NOT TO EXIST IN BOSTON."

By degrees, however, the field of evening instruction in which Prospect Union was a pioneer was entered by many other agencies, some of them much better equipped and more adequately endowed.

Wentworth Institute came along—finest school of its kind in all the United States!—and the Franklin Union.

The Cambridge subway was built; the evening classes of Greater Boston became readily accessible to Cambridge men.

Finally, there came the University Extension courses, under State direction, and altogether there were facilities for the education of the working-man and the working-woman which Prospect Union could not equal.

Confronted by these changes, Prospect Union shifted its plans to a NEW undertaking. "What is it," the trustees asked themselves, "that a young man most needs as he looks about him for opportunities of instruction?"

The answer, they decided, appeared to be that he needs INFORMATION concerning the many agencies which had entered the field.

Prospect Union Educational Exchange prints every year a book, a catalogue—Harvard men might call it an Elective Pamphlet—which describes these opportunities in detail. This book, "Educational Opportunities of Greater Boston; Day and Evening Courses for Working Men and Women," is intended for wide circulation in schools, factories and homes, calling to those exceptional persons who are eager to devote their evenings—or a portion of the day, maybe—to study.

And how much DOES Greater Boston offer, in the way of educational opportunities for the ADULT?

The present catalogue, second in the new Prospect Union series, enumerates 1,850 DIFFERENT COURSES IN 450 SUBJECTS!

It may be that YOUR "outside" interest of the moment is in radio, and that you want to know MORE about the new method of communication than is known by the average man.

Are you willing to give a few evenings a week to a fascinating study? Very well, Prospect Union stands ready to introduce you to:

We select radio for special emphasis—unwisely, it may be—because it happens to be the thing everyone is talking about. But these 450 subjects begin with Applied Art, Architecture, Art Appreciation and Cartooning, run through the Household Arts, Textiles and Agriculture, take up Electrical, Mechanical and Steam Engineering, and include Law, Music, Commerce, Modern Languages, Public Speaking and every other study-subject imaginable. Name yours—and leave the rest to Prospect Union.

The list is selective rather than exhaustive. Most of these opportunities are suitable for persons who can devote only a small part of the day to study.

The Prospect Union Educational Exchange, at No. 760 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, is NOT, please to remember, an advertising medium for schools. It IS an accrediting agency.

The Union accepts NO FEE FROM ANY SCHOOL LISTED, OR FROM ANY PERSON SERVED, BEING FINANCED SOLELY BY ENDOWMENT. Its aim is to present trustworthy information to people who need it. Its concern is for THEM, rather than for the schools it has listed. As long as the edition lasts, copies of the booklet referred to here will be supplied free of charge to all who ask for them.

He was a true New England Minute Man, that young minister of the mission chapel over in Cambridgeport who, more than thirty years ago, conceived the idea of Prospect Union—and they were equally New England Minute Men who, in later years, heard and responded to the demand for an educational clearing-house, an educational information bureau.

All honor to them!

We ought to NAME the minister, but unfortunately none of those at Prospect Union with whom we talked yesterday could recall his name.

The moral of today's talk, if occasionally we may point a moral?

Simply this, Minute Men and Minute Women: That it is utter folly to conclude that education must cease when we leave school, because the time has come to "work for a living."

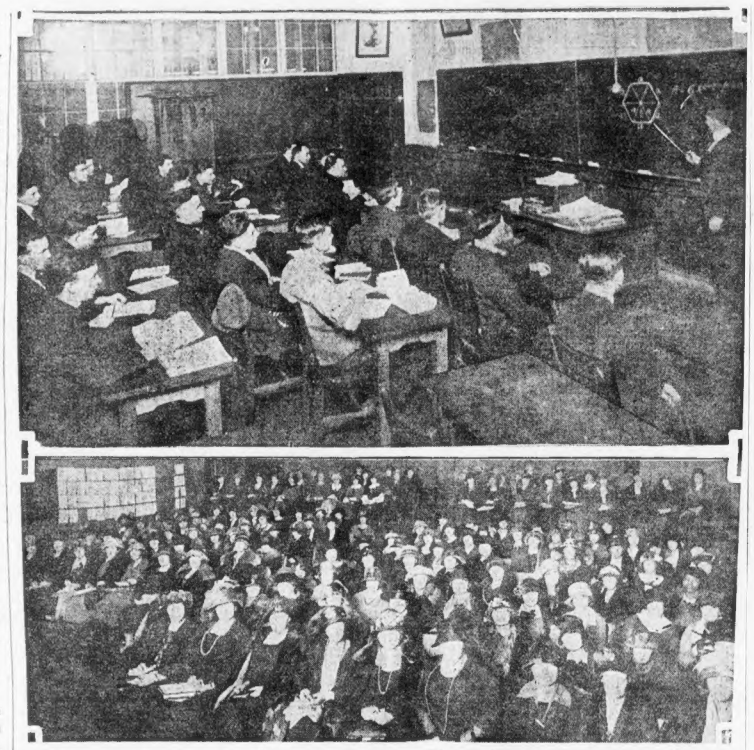
Life still is ahead of us. We have a long distance to travel. There is much to learn.

The fault with too many of us is that we had come to look upon education as something for the "high-brow," something not for us.

All wrong!

What are we going to DO about it?

Why not determine NOW, today, this instant, to make better use of the rich and wonderful opportunities which are all around us?



Popularity of University Extension Courses in Massachusetts. Above, a class in Practical Applied Mathematics, meeting in the West Lynn plant of the General Electric Company; below, a University Extension class in Home Decoration, Boston.

There is no time in the life of any healthy man in which he can not profit by further study. The capacity for growth—both intellectual and moral—should be kept alive by frequent exercises.

Throughout the educational process we must weigh the relative merits of further intensive study in the field of our specialty, of joyous pursuit of our dearest hobby and of broadening our minds and increasing our social effectiveness through the taking up of studies wholly new.

Self-analysis, combined with an examination of our field of social obligation, is necessary to determine the most appropriate field of study at any given time.

If the Prospect Union Educational Exchange can bring each citizen in touch with the educational opportunities which he most needs, its purpose is accomplished.

President.
